

New Suspect Under Wraps

Cincinnati detectives Hank Snodderly, left, and Tom Gardner, right, escort Clifford Kroger of Winter Park, Fla., to court with a coat over his head. Police said another suspect was wrongfully accused because of press and TV pictures seen by witnesses. Kroger is accused of the kidnapping last week of 4-year-old Allison Mechem, who was found unharmed. Kroger, under $100,000 bond, said he returned voluntarily from Florida to fight the abduction charge.

Senate Nixes Chile Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring pleas from President Ford and its own leaders, the Senate reaffirmed Tuesday its vote to end military aid to Turkey and added a similar cutoff to Chile.

Despite a threatened veto, the Senate rejected 59 to 29 a motion by Republican leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., to strike the ban of aid to any country using U.S. military equipment for other than defensive purposes.

That provision, aimed specifically at Turkey, was first adopted Monday. The cutoff of some $12 million in military assistance to Chile was approved in a separate vote Tuesday.

Scott was joined by majority leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., in unsuccessfully urging a reversal of the Turkey amendment. Both it and the Chile restriction were attached to a broad resolution needed to extend beyond Sept. 30 the spending authority for foreign aid and other federal programs for which regular money bills have not yet been passed.

The continuing resolution was then passed 72 to 16 and sent to a House-Senate conference committee, which will meet later in the week.

Although word of the possible veto was relayed to the Senate by senior Appropriations Committee members, the Senate voted within minutes to add further restrictions to the continuing money measure.

It adopted an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to cut off military aid amounting to about $12 million to Chile.

Kennedy told the Senate the "military dictatorship" in Chile "is engaged in a continuing pattern of gross violations of human rights — including the torture of political prisoners."

Adoption of his amendment, he said, would "put the United States on record in favor of restoration of human rights."

Adopted 52 to 31 was an amendment by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., making progressive cuts in the monthly spending rate for foreign aid as long as the program continues without new authorizing legislation. The cuts would start with 30 per cent in November and increase by 10 per cent each month until it reached zero next June.

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., of the Senate Appropriations Committee appealed to the Senate not to load the resolution with policy amendments that might deadlock it in conference with the House.

President Ford announced his veto intention if an amendment cutting off military aid to Turkey survives a Senate-House conference.

The President said the amendment by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., adopted 57 to 20 Monday night, would deprive the United States of its negotiating flexibility and influence in efforts to negotiate agreement between Greece and Turkey for peace on Cyprus.

In Ankara, Turkey, Defense Minister Hasan Isik said the Senate vote to suspend military aid to Turkey would have no effect on Turkey's Cyprus policy.

The resolution would authorize continued spending, basically at last year's rate, for certain programs. The previous continuing resolution expired Sept. 30.

McClellan said that meant there now is no money available for major health, education and welfare programs, including an estimated $2.8 billion in the continuing resolution for elementary and secondary school aid.

Cranston said his progressive cut amendment was intended to thwart those opponents of the pending restrictive foreign aid authorization bill who seek to delay final action and continue programs under last year's authority.

Kennedy said he pressed his Chile military aid cutoff amendment to the money resolution because "this may be the last foreign aid bill."

In opposing the Eagleton amendment, President Ford endorsed language approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee for which it was substituted.

The committee proposed to suspend military aid to Turkey until the President certified that Turkey was making "good faith" efforts to negotiate a settlement in Cyprus. The House had adopted language to suspend aid until the President certified "substantial progress" in negotiations.

The Eagleton amendment, clearly aimed at Turkey for what Eagleton called "illegal" use of U.S. arms in the July invasion of Cyprus, is phrased to apply to "any country" using U.S. supplied weapons for other than defensive purposes.

In other actions on the money resolution the Senate:

— Adopted 65 to 26 an amendment by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., to increase economic assistance to Israel at the rate of $250 million a year, instead of $50 million, and to convert to military grant aid $100 million of the $300 million a year allowed for military credit sales.

— Adopted 59 to 31 an amendment by Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, to ban further shipments of fertilizer to South Vietnam for the rest of the fiscal year. Clark said $85 million shipped, more than double aid to all other countries.

Deadly Flu To Hit U.S.

Atlanta (UPI) — A new, deadly influenza strain, related to the killer 1972 London flu, will hit much of the United States this winter, the National Center for Disease Control reported Tuesday.

Dr. Larry Corey of the center's viral diseases branch said a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers flu is expected in all parts of the country except the Mid-Atlantic and Northeast regions.

Port Chalmers flu, initially isolated last year in New Zealand, is a Type A strain similar to the London flu which swept the U.S. in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak in February 1973. Corey said Port Chalmers flu is much deadlier than the Type B flu which swept the nation last winter.

Corey refused to speculate on the number of deaths which might result from the Port Chalmers outbreak, but noted there are normally about 540 pneumonia and influenza deaths per week in the United States during the three-month winter flu season.

The Port Chalmers strain has a higher mortality rate because it more often strikes adults than last year's Type B strain, which mainly struck children who were more able to resist the disease. Flu-related deaths were down sharply last year because of the prevalence of the milder Type B strain.

Despite predictions of a flu epidemic, Corey said only about nine million of the 45 million persons in the "high-risk" category are expected to get flu shots this winter. He said the flu vaccine, which is between 70 and 80% effective, has been updated to include protection against the Port Chalmers strain.

The high-risk group which should be certain to get shots include the elderly and the chronically ill, said Corey.

Corey said Port Chalmers was widespread in Australia and other Southern Hemisphere countries last summer and several cases of the disease were isolated in Georgia and Mississippi during the summer. He said it is expected to hit the Southeast, Midwest, Southwest and Pacific regions this winter.

The Mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas are not expected to be hit so hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

The flu season normally runs from November to February with the weather a major factor whether it comes early or late.

Highway Unit Holds 'Pre-Meetings'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Last Friday the State Highway Commission met in a closed "pre-meeting" in State Engineer Thomas Doyle's office prior to its scheduled 10 a.m. public meeting.

Such meetings have occurred regularly for at least the last two years without public knowledge until a reporter chanced upon two recent meetings and was told by a secretary they were "pre-meetings" and were closed to newsmen.

At times, officials have indicated, personnel and business matters have arisen in the sessions. Reportedly no votes are taken and no minutes are kept.

The commission consists of seven private citizens appointed by the governor to advise the state engineer, the Legislature and the governor about highway needs. The state engineer is a non-voting member.

Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer Tuesday declined to comment on the legality of the pre-meeting practice.

George Koster, commission secretary, said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Holdrege that the pre-meetings do not violate the state's open meetings law.

"Cup Of Coffee"
Koster said, "Tom (Doyle) invites the commissioners up to his office before the meeting to have a cup of coffee.

"It's a social gathering where they have an opportunity to shoot the breeze generally about anything that comes up. Usually they talk about football."

"It sets the mood for the meeting," he said.

Asked if commission business was ever discussed, Koster said, "I'd be foolish to say it hasn't happened. It doesn't occur on a regular basis... (and) they don't go down the agenda item by item."

He said the meetings sometimes involve "things you would never want discussed in public."

Commissioner David Breslow of Lincoln defended the practice, saying it deals with matters that are "none of your business."

"Meetings Open"
"Our meetings are open," he said. "We do have executive sessions for problems of operation."

Under the open meeting law, executive sessions, which provide the secrecy which encourages frank discussions, must be preceded by open sessions where a motion to go into executive session is made and voted upon.

The commission's pre-meetings are not preceded by an open session.

Breslow said the pre-meeting discussion may involve "overall problems" facing the department and the problems of "certain individuals."

However, he said no decision has ever been made during a pre-meeting to seek or not to seek an increase in the state gasoline tax.

Koster asked, "Is it a violation of the open meetings law to invite the commissioners to have coffee? It's not a session; it just happens that most of the commissioners are there."

"The commissioners come as far as 400 miles for the meetings and haven't seen Tom in a month."

"Public Record"
Asked if pre-meetings are intended to iron out disagreement among commissioners before the public meeting, Koster said, "My basic outlook is to make everything a matter of public record that should be."

He continued: "I know that previous administrations had a tell-nothing attitude, and they got it in the ear from the press for that. This commission has been a lot more open than in previous administrations."

"On my word of honor, we are not having pre-meetings" to conduct official business.

Saxbe Tells 3 Senators He'll Talk To Lawyers

Washington (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe assured three Nebraska state senators Tuesday that he will bring their allegations of a conspiracy in the meat industry to the attention of government antitrust lawyers.

Sens. John DeCamp, Loran Schmit and Walter Epke emerged from an hour-long meeting with Saxbe and said they were "really pleased with the attorney general's attitude." A department spokesman confirmed after the private session that Saxbe "intends to talk to the antitrust people" about the proposals submitted by the senators.

DeCamp said Saxbe also agreed to contact officials of major food chains to discuss the senators' proposals.

Saxbe is scheduled to address a meeting here of food store officials Oct. 29 and may raise the matter then, the department spokesman said.

Saxbe's meeting with the state senators involved the same issue raised by Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon and a group of cattlemen in a session with the attorney general Monday.

Saxbe asked Exon to deliver proof of his allegation that a meat industry conspiracy has forced prices down for the producer and up for the consumer.

Noting that request, the senators said in a written statement, "We will offer information here today to establish that there is indeed price manipulation and control by the chain stores and that this manipulation is and was intentional."

The statement continued, "The system now in existence for the purchase of red meat by the chains enables the chains to purchase this meat under an artificially low price..."

The senators urged Saxbe to take steps to dismantle a central purchasing system used by A&P regardless of whether the system was created through a conspiracy with other major food chains.

They also asked Saxbe to force A&P, Safeway and Kroger to withdraw from the National Association of Food Chains.

The statement said that evidence developed in a beef antitrust suit in California indicated that the association was "utilized by the chains to systematically enable the chains to purchase their products in a noncompetitive manner."

The senators told Saxbe, "It is important to note that these two recommendations should be implemented immediately whether or not it is ultimately established by this department that the current purchasing practices which improperly affect the livestock market were created through conspiracy and collusion or whether they occurred through the natural growth of the three major chains..."

The senators told reporters that they agreed to furnish Saxbe with evidence developed in their own suit against Safeway and A&P, and other evidence turned up in the California case.

Curtis Expects To Run For Fifth Term In 1978

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

Sen. Carl T. Curtis said Tuesday he does "expect to run" for a fifth term in 1978.

Curtis added that, while he was not trying to promote Gov. J. James Exon as the Democratic candidate, "I'd just as soon beat him as anybody."

Curtis made the remarks in a telephone interview from Washington with The Associated Press. His comments came when he was asked specifically if he viewed Exon as a Democratic threat for his Senate seat in 1978.

"I do expect to run," in 1978, Curtis said. And as for any Exon candidacy, "I'd just as soon beat him as anybody," the senator said.

Exon responded by saying: "1978 is a long way off. I'm certainly not looking ahead to any contest at this time, but obviously from his comments, Senator Curtis is."

Curtis spoke of his current plan to seek re-election after answering charges that he had involved himself in Nebraska's current gubernatorial race. Curtis rebutted the charges which came from Exon, saying:

"Exon is a lobbyist for big spending programs in Washington. He is campaigning for state office on federal issues."

"Any meddling that's being done is being initiated by him in an effort to divert attention from state problems," Curtis said.

Curtis' statement about his plans for 1978 was the strongest indication yet that the man from Minden, who has been the most successful Nebraska politician of his time, would seek a fifth term.

There was speculation that Curtis, 69, might call it quits in 1978, in part because of the unusually narrow margin of victory he managed in 1972. Curtis won the narrowest victory of his lengthy political career when he turned back a surprisingly stiff challenge from then-State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

Curtis' fourth-term victory came by a percentage margin of about 53 to 47.

Prior to that, he had won the Senate spot handsly three times, and had won eight general elections to the House.

County Taking LT&T Property Blocked

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Telephone Co. obtained a court order Tuesday temporarily blocking Lancaster County from taking telephone company property as payment on delinquent taxes.

Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrnbuch issued the restraining order, but refused to stop the county from acting under provisions of the law which provide that a delinquent taxpayer must pay over all monies in hands or be subject to prosecution for a misdemeanor offense.

The court set Oct. 28 for hearing on a temporary injunction sought by LT&T pending other court proceedings.

LT&T has filed suits in Lancaster and 14 other southeastern Nebraska counties seeking a reduction in the assessed value of phone company property on the contention that real estate is not being assessed at the 35% statutory level at which personal property is assessed.

In the action filed Tuesday, the utility firm claims its personal property was valued at 35% of actual, while the sales-assessment ratio compiled by the State Department of Revenue shows real estate in Lancaster County at the 23% level.

The plaintiffs contend their personal property assessment is "grossly discriminatory, excessive, inequitable and unjust."

The petition further alleges that on Aug. 28, LT&T gave a $193,690.47 check to Lancaster County to cover the last half of the delinquent 1973 taxes that LT&T contends it owes.

However, the petition says the county attorney's office has refused to instruct County Treasurer Frank Golden to accept the check as payment on taxes.

The phone company contends the check is payment in full on all taxes legally imposed on LT&T.

Weapons Inflation Put At $16.9 Billion

Cover-Up Trial To Last Months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate cover-up case went to trial Tuesday with the judge predicting it will be months before the jury renders its verdict upon men who once sat in the high councils of government with Richard M. Nixon.

"Every effort will be made to conclude the trial before the holiday season, but this cannot be guaranteed," U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said on the first day of the time-consuming process of selecting a jury.

By day's end the first pool of 155 prospective jurors had been whittled to 65 and each one will be questioned in more detail and privacy on Thursday. In the meantime, a second panel of 175 will go through the initial weeding-out process on Wednesday.

Before Sirica as defendants in a criminal conspiracy case were three men once counted as among the most powerful in government, John N. Mitchell, Richard Nixon's law-and-order attorney general; H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff, and John D. Ehrlichman, through whom all domestic programs cleared.

Along with co-defendants Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, who were employed by the Nixon re-election committee in 1972, they were accused of trying to hide responsibility for the Watergate break-in through "deceit, craft, trickery and dishonest means."

As the defendants whiled away their time writing letters, doodling or talking with friends, Sirica heard and excused 90 jury prospects who asked to be let out of service.

They pleaded mostly the care of children or home or problems of health. With only a handful of exceptions, the judge accepted the excuses.

The remaining 65 then underwent mass questioning for 1½ hours, asked if they or any member of their family ever had any dealing with nearly 100 witnesses the defense may call or the 44 expected to testify for the government.

The judge asked the prospective jurors whether any had ever worked for the Department of Justice, or the House Judiciary Committee, or the U.S. Attorney's office, or the Senate Watergate Committee or the special prosecutor's office — all of whom have investigated some phase of Watergate.

The judge asked about prior jury experience, about prior involvement in any lawsuits and whether any potential juror was unable to accept the law in its entirety or had any "moral, ethical, philosophical or religious" reason for not wanting to sit in judgement of others.

Finally, Sirica asked: "Is there anyone who cannot presume that the defendants who stand before you are innocent men?" None of the panelists stood in answer to that question.

The thoroughness of the proceeding made it certain that no jury will be empaneled before Friday at the earliest since the individual questioning usually proceeds at the rate of eight or 10 an hour.

Sirica has not said how many challenges-without-cause he will permit the government and the five defendants, and the final pool depends on that decision. There will be 12 jurors and six alternates for the trial.

The judge admonished the potential jurors to stay away from news accounts of the day and to refrain from discussing the case at home, saying, "You have a very sacred duty to perform — perhaps one of the most important in your life."

All but Mardian are accused of obstruction of justice in addition to the conspiracy charge that is common to all of them. Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also face multiple charges of lying to investigators about Watergate.

FAHMY . . . addresses U.N.

Egyptian Criticizes U.S. Mideast Policy

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Egypt's foreign minister, speaking Tuesday just a week before Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's next Middle East peace mission, criticized American policy on Arab oil prices, arms to Israel and a Mideast settlement.

Addressing the United Nations General Assembly, Ismail Fahmy also declared that Egypt "will not accept the state of neither peace nor war."

"That state of affairs," he said, "can only serve aggressive Israel."

Fahmy said oil prices rose only after those of other commodities and of manufactured goods and, referring to President Ford and Kissinger without naming them, hit at "statesmen in the advanced countries . . . attempting to put the blame on the Arabs" for inflation.

Referring to U.S. arms supplies to Israel amid the Arab-Israeli war of last Oct. 6-21, he said "unlimited shipments of arms" to the Jewish state should have been stopped immediately because they "contributed to heightening Israeli arrogance" and militated against a settlement.

Fahmy made no mention of the trip Kissinger is planning to Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Israel Oct. 8-14 in search of a settlement. He said the Geneva peace conference offered "the appropriate formula . . . for reaching a comprehensive and permanent solution."

He said the assembly should reaffirm the Palestinians' "rights to . . . national independence" and their "right to return to their homelands," meaning the territory Israel now controls.

Israeli aggression, he said, "should not go unpunished."

Outside the assembly hall, Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoa accused Fahmy of "acrimony, arrogance and hostility . . . detrimental . . . to efforts to achieve understanding and peace."

Aldrin, Dieldrin Banned

Action Affects Most Ag Uses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train on Tuesday banned any further production of the pesticides Aldrin and Dieldrin for most farm uses, citing them as probable cancer hazards.

Shell Chemical Co., the sole manufacturer of Aldrin and Dieldrin in the United States, announced it would appeal to a federal court.

The EPA said the two pesticides are used for farm and commercial pest control, but not in products used around the home.

All the same, EPA administrative law judge Herbert J. Perlman warned ten days ago that the entire U.S. population is exposed to Aldrin and Dieldrin, in the air and as residues on food.

In banning most production of these pesticides, Train agreed with Perlman that Aldrin and Dieldrin "present a high risk of cancer to man."

An EPA spokesman said Train's decision allowed Shell to continue manufacturing limited amounts, for use only in three specific ways:

—Deep ground-insertion for termite control.

—Dipping of roots and tops of non-food plants.

—And mothproofing of materials in closed areas which allow no escape of pesticides to the environment.

But it prohibited Shell from manufacturing Aldrin or Dieldrin for their major uses, to protect corn; citrus crops; pineapples, onions and other minor crops; and for treating seeds.

EPA said the chemicals must be clearly labeled to forbid prohibited uses and the agency said it would monitor production and distribution to enforce its ban.

The agency estimated its restrictions would bar the production of some 10 million pounds of Aldrin and Dieldrin which would otherwise be used on crops in 1975.

Existing supplies may still be sold and used.

New York Times News Summary

Inspections Condition For Aid

Washington — A United States proposal to Egypt and Israel that they agree to international inspection of all their future nuclear facilities as a condition for receiving American atomic power plants has been disclosed by State Department officials. This condition, which covers facilities from any source, has become a major stumbling block to former President Nixon's offer of the plants last spring. Egypt is said to have suggested that inspection should apply also to existing atomic facilities in both countries, which presumably would be unacceptable to Israel.

Communist Bloc 'Fertile Field'

Rome — Stefan Cardinal Wysinski, archbishop of Warsaw, told the synod of Roman Catholic bishops that despite government opposition the Communist bloc in Eastern Europe remains a fertile field for evangelical work. He challenged the view that the West is liberal, Christian and capitalist, and the East Marxist, monolithic and atheistic. William Cardinal Conway of Armagh said the conflict in Northern Ireland is not a religious war and that relations between the churches there are very good.

Meany Raps Detente

Washington — George Meany criticized the United States policy of detente with the Soviet Union as one-sided appeasement. The AFL-CIO president told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he favored a tough, realistic relationship in which the Soviet Union would make reciprocal concessions. He said the "phony detente" has produced a "silly euphoria" in the West.

Nixon's Lung Healing

Long Beach, Calif. — The area of former President Richard M. Nixon's right lung that was damaged by a blood clot that broke off from a vein in his phlebitis-damaged left leg has partly healed and no new blood clots have lodged in either lung in the last week, Dr. John C. Lungren, Nixon's personal physician, said.

Ford Testimony Next Week

Washington — President Ford will testify next week, no later than Thursday, about his pardon of former President Nixon, according to Rep. William L. Hungate, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on criminal justice. Close associates of Ford said his decision to appear reflected his view that executive privilege was not an absolute right.

Ford Favors Mass-Transit

Washington — President Ford gave unqualified support to a long-term, $11-billion mass-transit bill at a meeting with 22 mayors and eight business and labor leaders at the White House.

Lower Price Of Gasoline Temporary

By United Press International

Several oil companies Tuesday reduced gasoline prices slightly, but oil men and government officials warned that the lower prices are temporary and will rise again because the oil-producing nations are "thumbing their nose" at President Ford.

Standard Oil of Ohio, Skelly Oil Co. of Tulsa, Okla., and a major independent, Clark Oil Co., lowered prices on all grades of gasoline. Late last month, Mobil Oil Co. reduced its prices, and Exxon said it is reviewing its price structure.

But at the same time, Gulf Oil Co., citing higher costs for foreign crude and refined products, raised its pump prices 1.5 cents a gallon on all grades. Sohio reduced its prices by one penny per gallon, Skelly dropped prices 2.5 cents per gallon, and Clark Oil cut prices by two cents a gallon in the 13 Midwestern states it serves.

But, one oil executive who asked not to be identified cautioned motorists not to view the slightly lower prices as the start of a trend.

"They should not go out and buy a 3,000-pound car thinking that the clock has been turned back," he said. "No way."

The major oil exporting countries are not bowing to Ford's pressure for lower prices and in fact want even higher crude oil prices, and these will be passed on to the consumer, he said.

"Between you and me, they're thumbing their nose at Ford," the oil man said. "They want more money that will be passed through to the consumer. That pressure is not relenting."

The current price fluctuations in gasoline prices were not caused by either a raising or lowering of the basic price American companies must pay for foreign or domestic oil. Rather, the price changes were prompted by the kinds of oil purchased or through higher royalty taxes.

Under agreements with oil exporting countries, oil companies take two kinds of oil — equity oil which is produced and owned by the companies and "buy-back" oil owned by the countries. Equity oil is the cheapest, selling at about $7.10 per barrel, as opposed to between $10.50 and $11 for buy-back oil. If the companies are able to increase the amount of equity oil, the average price of all oil declines.

Under Federal Energy Administration rules, oil companies must review their average costs monthly and pass on any savings to the consumer. But higher costs can be passed on as well.

Oilmen Lured By Nicaraguan Prospects

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Lured by the prospect of an oil and gas lode seven times as large as the North Sea fields, foreign oilmen are snapping up exploration concessions in Nicaragua. "They're moving in for the kill," said the president, Gen. Anastasio Somoza.

Prospects are so good, in fact, that Somoza, considered one of the shrewdest businessmen in Central America, has personally invested heavily in the search for oil and gas, according to a high government source.

"The general does not throw his money away on gambles that do not pay," the source said. "He always wins."

Somoza's business holdings in Nicaragua that have resulted from four decades of rule by his family are not publicized officially, but they have been estimated as high as $500 million. He heads the 5,000-man

Nicaraguan armed forces.

The president said the government already has awarded 30 exploration concessions to American and other foreign companies like Union, Texaco, Chevron, Shell, El Paso and Occidental. International combines are seeking eight more.

Ford's Personal Testimony

Although we still believe President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon was a serious blunder which raised more questions than it answered, the new president's decision to face congressional pardon critics in person should be applauded.

Ford Monday announced he would appear in person before a House Judiciary subcommittee to answer questions about the pardon posed by members. The questions center around whether former White House staff chief Alexander Haig suggested the pardon for Nixon, what agreements were made in connection with it and whether Ford's granting of it was based on knowledge of Nixon's physical or mental health.

Ford would be only the third sitting president to testify before Congress. Joining George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, he is in respectable company. His attitude toward the distinctions between the executive and legislative branches is in marked contrast to that of his predecessor, and Ford's is by far the healthier. It does not demean a president to make an appearance before a congressional committee. In fact, it should enhance mutual respect.

Ford reportedly decided to testify on the grounds that since he was solely responsible for the pardon and knows best the circumstances surrounding the situation, he is in the best position to supply the information that was requested.

We hope the information he supplies will shed some light on the curious circumstances and reasoning which lie behind a totally surprising and ill-considered act. Hopefully, too, the President will be pressed and will reply to questions relating to the tapes and documents deal made with Nixon. It would be helpful in ridding ourselves of this issue if Ford would openly declare his desire that the full truth of Nixon's involvement in the Watergate crimes be revealed.

Ford's testifying before a congressional committee is a beginning to the end of Watergate. It should restore to him some of the confidence lost when the pardon was announced. The President should realize, however, that the book will not be closed until it is finished.

Pet Control Supported

Judging from the turnout at Monday night's City Council meeting, considerable sentiment exists in Lincoln for a pet control ordinance with teeth in it.

A number of Lincolinites were on hand to support a proposed ordinance which would authorize police officers to issue citations to dog owners for violations of the licensing, leash or barking laws. The owner could fight it or plead guilty by waiver and pay a fine in the same manner as one pays parking violations.

While both those who own dogs and those who don't testified in favor of the proposal ("all we're asking for," said one man, "is something which will allow us to sleep at night"), no one testified in opposition.

A pertinent point was raised, however, by Councilwoman Helen Boosalis who said

TOM WICKER

Rockefeller, Attica

NEW YORK — Congress ought to explore thoroughly the qualifications and attitudes of any man who is to stand a heartbeat from the presidency. But last week before the Senate Judiciary Committee, the response of Nelson Rockefeller to a question about the Attica prison rebellion raised serious questions about his memory or his veracity or both; and the committee only let the matter drop.

Rockefeller did concede, tacitly but for the first time, that as governor of New York, he should not have permitted the armed attack on the prison on Sept. 13, 1971. That attack resulted in the deaths of 39 guards and inmates and the wounding of more than 80 other men.

To the Judiciary Committee, he said last week, "The procedure . . . namely to go ahead at the beginning without weapons and which was stopped in the process, which procedure has now been re-established by the state, is the best procedure and . . . if this would happen again I would think that was the proper way to proceed." It may comfort the families of 39 dead men that Rockefeller now believes it would have been better not to use firearms.

Rockefeller's other testimony on Attica largely obfuscated or distorted what happened there, including his own role. He said, for example, that Bobby Seale of the Black Panthers and William Kunstler, the attorney "coincidentally arrived on the scene." Both men, in fact, were asked to come as "observers" by the rebelling inmates, as a part of their demands for a negotiated settlement, and the state agreed to their presence.

Again, Rockefeller told the senators that "by about the third or fourth day" of the rebellion, his commissioner of corrections, Russell G. Oswald, was "fearful of his life" and would not go back into the prison. The fact is that Oswald did not return to the prison after the second day, not because he was "fearful of his life" — he had gone courageously into the prison yard three times — but because of a direct inmate threat to take him hostage.

At a crucial point in the negotiations, Rockefeller said of the observer group that the state had helped to assemble, "One by one they left . . . fearing their lives and the only man who was left who had the courage to stay and to argue with the prisoners was Mr. Clarence Jones of the Amsterdam News . . ."

Clarence Jones is a brave man who repeatedly proved it at Attica. But on the occasion to which the governor referred, at least half the observer group remained in the prison yard with him. The other half left only because they thought the entire group was leaving, and because a pledge had been exacted from them by Commissioner Oswald that all would leave together. The group who left included this writer. It included also Rep. Herman Badillo of New York, one of the most courageous and effective of the observers, who also had involved himself personally in jail uprisings in New York City the year before.

Nelson Rockefeller was at that time and throughout the rebellion and the state police attack nowhere near the Attica prison yard. When members of the observer committee asked him to come, he told the Judiciary Committee, "I think . . . that they had failed and that therefore, rather than to have to say we have failed in this maybe if somebody else would come, maybe something would happen . . ."

This was a false and gratuitous slur on the observers' motives. Jones, Badillo, State Sen. John Dunne of New York, and this writer all told Rockefeller by telephone that if he would come to Attica to talk with the observers, NOT the inmates, time might be gained in which a negotiated settlement might be arranged, and the governor's good faith in seeking such a settlement would be demonstrated to the inmates.

Before the Senate committee, Rockefeller attributed to himself a proposal that he come to Attica after the inmates had given up their hostages. In fact, Oswald made that proposal to Rockefeller, who turned it down. Rockefeller also said the deaths of 10 guards from state police gunfire was due mainly to "overfire" from troopers trying to protect one another from inmate attack. The New York State Commission on Attica raised serious doubts about this explanation two years ago; and it is simply not true, as Rockefeller claimed, that "the instructions of the state police were not to use their weapons unless one of their own had to be defended."

The irrefutable truth is that for six solid minutes, that bloody morning, New York State Police poured indiscriminate backshot and rifle fire into a milling mass of gas-blinded inmates. The result was that one of every 10 persons in the prison yard and a quarter of the hostages were hit. Thirty-nine died, and no hindsight or prevarication will bring them back.

FATHERS ARE DISCRIMINATED AGAINST

Taking On Responsibilities

In this day of so many people's demanding rights and feeling discriminated against, may I bring another group to the attention of Star readers.

Fathers! Yes, in time of divorce, it seems that the mother has almost automatic custody of any child.

I suggest that each parent have to prove that he or she can provide a calm, loving, healthful home and then let the judge decide.

I'm sure that a closer relationship between many fathers and their children would result if they felt they had equal rights.

So women want to be liberated. They want the right of equal pay, equal jobs, the right to enter many affairs previously dominated by men. Now give fathers the same rights as mothers and let them all know they have that right.

Too often nowadays, our young don't want the responsibilities of marriage and like their freedom. Child support creates more heartaches than many realize.

MRS. J.

Deplores Use Of Funds

I am not generally in the business of making predictions, but I imagine that we are about due for another of Congressman Charles Thone's "personal" newsletters. Since federal law prohibits use of the frank (free mailing privilege for congressmen) during the 28 days prior to an election, that gives Thone just about one more chance to spend approximately 27,000 taxpayers' dollars to spread his political message across Nebraska's First District, as he has done increasingly more often as the election approaches.

It is appalling to me, and I'm sure to many other taxpaying citizens, that we must endure this gross misuse of tax money. The principle of a legislator's keeping in contact with his constituents through the frank is valid and necessary, but Thone's newsletters are obviously political in nature, and are another example of Thone's mediocre and fence-straddling approach to representing this district.

Out-Of-State Contributions

Mrs. Robert Crosby's letter bemoaning the out-of-state contributions for the campaign of "Pious Dyas" (her term) seems petty in view of (1) other stories in The Star indicating a drying up of campaign sources, especially for Republican candidates in Nebraska; (2) the freedom all Americans have to contribute to whatever political campaigns they choose, individually or through such groups as can legally make contributions. I myself plan to contribute to a congressional campaign in my native state of Illinois, having known the candidate in question for years.

Candidates will need every dollar they can receive from whatever source it comes from this year (inside legal channels, of course). Wishing that non-Nebraskans wouldn't contribute to our state candidates is totally irrelevant this year.

Man, Tiny Microcosm

"In the oscillating movement of the planets, man is a tiny speck — a microcosm. We seek truth and in that search, a melody of voices is essential . . ."

The man who said that went to work at six years of age to assist in his support. He rode the rails, worked his way through under-graduate school and law school at times by carrying three jobs on his shoulders. RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON — The odd thing is not that we are in the business of overthrowing other peoples' governments, but that we can still be surprised when somebody reminds us of it. In Asia, Latin America, Africa, the Mediterranean and the Middle East, we have been propping up and knocking down governments more or less openly for the past 25 years.

It is an established policy. Everybody knows it. It is supposed to be done covertly, which is only sensible if you hope to succeed since publicity in matters of this sort can only make the natives resentful and defeat the project. Imagine the chauvinistic rallying around President Ford that would occur if Canada, say, announced that its agents were going to destabilize United States society so that discontented Americans would leave the present government out of office.

We have been so active in the field, however, that a number of our projects have come to light. Iran, Indonesia, South Vietnam, Greece, the Congo, Guatemala, Cuba — all have had their domestic politics secretly interfered with by the Central Intelligence Agency in ways that made headlines.

One of the C.I.A.'s few endearing traits is its penchant for making headlines. It is the world's most fully headlined secret agency. This is as it should be in an open society, and while it is doubtless embarrassing to the C.I.A. always to have its secrets turning up on Page One, we are more than compensated for its ineptitude by the opportunity it affords us to know ourselves.

The difficulty may be that we prefer not to know ourselves. How else can we explain these cries of shock that follow each fresh disclosure that the C.I.A. has done it again? We hear them again about the Chile intervention. In Washington, wise men who are on a first-name basis with Professor Kissinger are shocked — shocked — to discover that the United States is overthrowing other peoples' governments.

Professional moralizers of press and television are outraged by the bloodshed induced by the

not been kind to him. It was a beautiful piece of prose about a very valuable man. Not a perfect man, but a much nearer perfect man than his "haters."

I am not going to mention who he is because that identification would distort the theme.

G. J.

Times Have Changed

Richard Marvel and his handlers in the Nebraska Republican hierarchy are playing a mixed bag type of campaign in the race for the governorship. Somewhat amazingly, somewhat ironically and entirely paradoxically, the Marvel people would have us believe that the poor little rich Republicans in the state have forsaken their candidate who wasn't in all honesty the one they wanted in the first place. They are crying all over the place that the well has dried up and that they are almost penniless. How sad!

Are we now to believe that our proud Republican leaders are begging for alms, for help, for pity, for compassion, to elevate a man they actually do not believe in themselves to head our Ship of State for the next four years? My, how times do change!

Gone is the arrogance of Nebraska Republican big business, big power, big greed and big arrogance. Still, don't rush for the crying towel. And do not believe all that you read and hear. And beware of Greeks laden with gifts, seeking commiseration and forgiveness and help.

Effects Of Inflation

Inflation is a serious sickness that strikes the blue-collared workers and the jobless. Often it is fatal. The high-powered over-rich flip it off like an annoying fly, while the minority are told to tighten their belts, turn down their heat, and ride in car pools.

Mr. Nixon was once quoted as saying, "Let 'em eat cheese," while the majority fed on steak, caviar and champagne.

I doubt if the big-wigs eat hamburger, potato chips or cheese, or soup from a dog bone.

There is the $300,000 swimming pool for Mr. Ford. The expected postage raise is so that Postmaster General Klassen can squeeze more out of the taxpayers to improve his life style.

There are 32 persons working for Nixon. Their income adds up to $576,000, and they can use $40 a day for expenses. Why does he need so many helpers? He doesn't.

SOD-EUSTER

Considers Pardon Invalid

"Tricky Dick" has done it again! Now he is too sick to go to the Watergate hearings. By the time the trials come up, he will feign illness or something else. Has he ever failed to bungle things? I hope they don't go along with this. He should appear as a witness. Too long we have played along with his excuses.

The pardon shouldn't be considered for him, as it obstructs justice. Congress should stand up for national security, as Mr. Nixon always was concerned for national security.

Besides, the pardon isn't valid, as Nixon did not confess to any crime. If crime isn't stopped in the office of the presidency, don't wonder why we have such a crime wave. It will only get worse as it is reflected in the police forces now.

Congress should not approve of Rockefeller for vice president. Once he gets into office, we will have a one-man government. Don't let him fool us as Ford did. It is up to the people to elect a president and a vice president now.

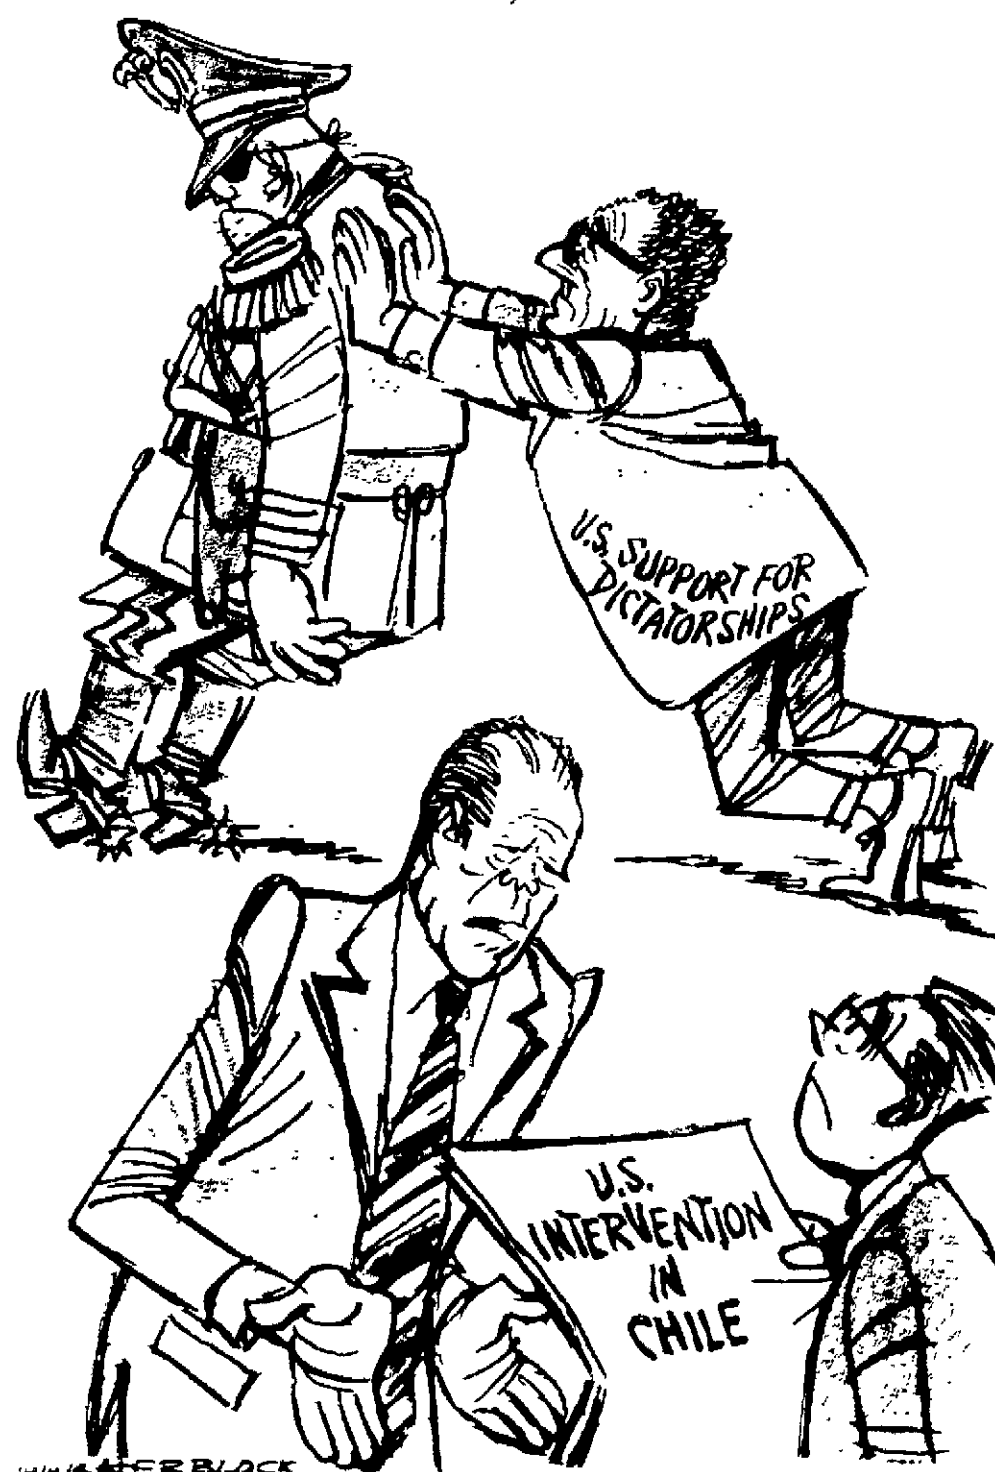

Why not change some of the laws that were made so many years ago. Times have changed and we need a new set of laws.

When the President was faced with his new problems, what did he do but elect a committee for this and a committee for that and more salaries for taxpayers to pay. It is his job to solve the problems and keep so many people off the payrolls.

I. C. MILLER

Clear Look Into A Dark Mirror

"It's common practice to interfere with other governments — if they're elected, that is" to have of yourself. It is traumatic to have people as authoritative as the President tell you it is the picture of Dorian Gray, and worse to have him pull the curtain away and show you what you have really come to look like after all these years of preening your beauty in the sunlight but taking all those clandestine nocturnal strolls down the back alleys of world power.

Overthrowing other peoples' governments is a habit of great imperial powers. Romans and Britons did it openly, as do the Soviets today, and we differ from them only in insisting that our innocence has not been lost, that we are as pure today as we were when we bedded down with empire 30 years ago. Our publicity proclaims it and when truth threatens to spoil the conceit, we deflect self-recognition by blaming tired old scapegoat C.I.A., which, goes the self-deception, is out of control and amok.

In fact, C.I.A. has been operating with tacit public consent from the beginning. Everybody knows it has been overthrowing governments, often bloodily, as a principle of American foreign policy for years.

The policy was never publicly adopted as such through the usual processes of debate, congressional vote and publicly reviewed appropriations. To have done it publicly would have been too embarrassing for us. It would have required us to admit that we were not who our publicity said we were. We preferred it done out of sight, and the government obliged. There has been no great clamor since for reviewing the policy.

The government is sensitive about preserving our illusions. It does its best to keep the drearier realities from intruding upon us. Typically, the exposure of the Chilean subversion has resulted not in any congressional demand to do away with the policy, but a move by the House Armed Services Committee to punish Rep. Harrington for telling us what we did down there.

If we are becoming the enemy we set out to thwart, the least Congress can do is punish anybody who threatens to let us know about it.

State Department Cites Exploitation By Lindstrom

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department expressed concern Tuesday over what it called exploitation of MIA families by a midwestern minister who claimed he arranged a Mexico City meeting between Communist agents and the mother of a U.S. pilot shot down over Laos.

"This report has already caused a good deal of anxiety and anguish among the families of our missing-in-action personnel," a department statement said in response to news accounts involving the Rev. Paul Lindstrom of Chicago, and an Evanston, Ill., widow.

The statement added: "We hope the MIA families will not have their hopes raised falsely by this kind of unsubstantiated report."

The Illinois woman, Jean Macdonald, said she returned last weekend from a meeting in Mexico City with two men who showed her a picture of a man she identified as her son.

Mrs. Macdonald said the two men, who refused to give their names and identified themselves only as Communists, demanded between $25,000 and $500,000 for proof that her son is alive and to start negotiations for his release from captivity in Laos.

They would not let her keep the photo but told her she would be contacted later, Mrs. Macdonald said.

Her son, 1st Lt. George D. Macdonald, a navigator aboard an Air Force C-130 cargo plane, was shot down Dec. 21, 1972, over Laos.

The Rev. Mr. Lindstrom, a fervent anti-Communist who has been active in private efforts to help find and free POWs and MIAs, said he arranged the Mexico meeting after two previous meetings with persons whom he believe are "tied to a diplomatic mission in Southeast Asia."

The minister said the Christian Defense League — an umbrella organization for POW-MIA groups — paid for Mrs. Macdonald's Mexico trip and would meet this week to decide whether to try to raise the money demanded by the Communist agents.

The State Department statement issued through a spokesman noted that "in the past, we have several times expressed our concern about Rev. Lindstrom's statements and actions."

The spokesman said that in 1972, the minister issued statements claiming that 115 U.S. pilots were being held by the Pathet Lao, that 64 U.S. military personnel had been transferred from Laos to China and that 77 had been transferred to North Vietnam.

"None of these statements and others attributed to Rev. Lindstrom before and since have been confirmed by the experience and testimony of our returned prisoners of war or by any other sources," the government spokesman said.

Kremer Urges Plan To Keep State Water

State Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora said Tuesday that the state would have to change the way it looks at underground water rights.

Kremer, in giving a report to the Legislative Council's executive board, said "We can't let one guy pump the water out from under another guy."

He gave a report on a trip the legislature's Public Works Committee took to the High Plains area near Lubbock, Tex. He said the Texas Constitution gives the ownership of underground water to the landowner. Kremer said Nebraska considers water rights the same way, although there is no specific constitutional provision.

Texas is running into severe problems and needs a new system of regulating water rights, he said.

Kremer said he thought a bill would be introduced into the legislature in January which would provide for regulation of well drilling in areas short of underground water.

The legislation will be controversial, Kremer said, but something should be done before a crisis develops.

He noted that several weather forecasters have predicted a series of dry years which would further compound underground water problems. He said irrigators already are having problems with rapidly dropping water tables in some areas of the state.

But he also offered an optimistic note. He said Nebraska, if it prevented water from flowing out of the state, would have enough water for years to come. He said plans should be made to place river water in either surface or underground storage to keep it from leaving the state.

In a related matter, he said the legislature should consider legislation to take authority over streams. The federal government has authority over navigable rivers, he said, but no one has authority over the stream beds of nonnavigable rivers, which include the Platte.

As he spoke with state Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha after the meeting, they indicated that the impetus for state control over streams could be the housing developments being built south of Omaha in Cass County.

State Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield has claimed the developments could cause flooding across the Platte River in Sarpy County.

Stockman Guilty Of Shipping Without Permit

Sioux City, Iowa (UPI) — A Nebraska cattleman Tuesday pleaded guilty in U.S. District court here to a charge of shipping cattle across state lines without a permit.

U.S. Department of Agriculture officials said Willis C. Peterson of Stuart, Neb., was accused of shipping 40 head of cattle without a permit from Atkinson, Neb., to Sioux City. The cattle came from a herd known to be affected by brucellosis, USDA officials said.

Peterson was charged with violating a regulation aimed at preventing the spread of brucellosis, a bacterial disease that affects the reproductive systems of cattle, swine and other livestock. The disease is most often spread by movement of breeding cattle infected or exposed to brucellosis.

Peterson paid a $100 fine.

Dyas Claims Thone's Pledge Slightly 'Phony'

Democratic congressional nominee Hess Dyas Tuesday pointed to at least 27 instances in which he believes Congressman Charles Thone has violated the spirit of his self-imposed $100 limit for campaign donations.

Thone has announced that he will not accept donations of more than $100 from campaign contributors.

But Dyas said campaign finance reports indicate that Thone has accepted at least 14 husband-wife donations which exceed $100. In no case, however, did one or the other contribute more than $100.

There are 13 instances in which Thone has received more than $100 from an individual in two separate donations over a two-year period, Dyas said. In no case did either year's donation exceed $100.

In view of the means used to exceed the $100 limit, Dyas said, Thone's campaign contribution pledge is "somewhat phony."

Dyas said Thone is also receiving "special interest" money indirectly through Republican Party contributions when he promised to accept none on his own.

NU Vets Urge Support Of Act

The Student Veterans Organization at the University of Nebraska Tuesday encouraged its members to send telegrams to the states' congressional delegation in support of the 1974 Vietnam Veterans readjustment act.

A conference committee of the House and Senate is scheduled to vote on the proposal on Wednesday.

Provisions of the act include a 22.6% cash increase for veterans attending a college, university or trade school; extension or entitlement from 36 to 45 months; and a $2,000 per year low-interest loan.

The organization urged telegrams be sent to Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska and to Reps. Charles Thone, John McCollister and Dave Martin.

Omahan Pleads Guilty To Heist Of MindenBank

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—An Omaha man charged in the Aug. 31 robbery of the Merchants State Bank at Minden, Iowa, has entered a guilty plea.

Donald R. Chandler, 33, entered the plea Monday in U.S. District Court here.

About $14,000 was taken in the holdup, and officials say the money has not been recovered.

Judge William C. Hanson did not set a date for Chandler's sentencing.

Both Chandler and a Council Bluffs, Iowa, man, Leon C. Ross, were indicted on bank robbery charges by a federal grand jury here last week.

Recycle Leaves To Build Humus

Lincoln residents may recycle their leaves and garden residue at a recycling center at 2535 N. 33rd.

Citizens for Environmental Improvement, Inc., will open the center between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. this Saturday and next for that purpose.

The leaves and residue will be shredded for the person who brought them so they may be used to build humus in lawns and gardens, according to Connie Stoun, CEI member.

Senatorial Bean Soup Cost Rises

Washington (AP) — The price of bean soup went up 28 per cent, from 35 cents a bowl to 45 cents, as inflation hit the Senate Restaurant this week.

Across-the-board increases took effect on most items to take into account steadily growing food costs. A cup of coffee went up from 20 cents to 25 cents.

Federal Pay Rises 5.52%

Washington (AP) — An estimated 3.5 million federal civilian and military employees received pay increases averaging 5.52% effective Tuesday as President Ford yielded to a congressional edict and ordered the salary hikes into effect.

In a White House statement, Ford said he had decided on the 5.52% increase rather than a higher figure sought by federal employe unions and a panel of nongovernment experts in labor relations and pay policy.

Dairy Co-Op Penalized $230,000

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A state district court judge levied civil penalties of $230,000 against the Associated Milk Producers Inc. on Tuesday and permanently enjoined the nation's largest milk cooperative from violating Texas antitrust laws.

District Court Judge Tom Blackwell accepted an out-of-court settlement between the Texas attorney general's office and attorneys for AMPI.

The judgment, read in court by state Atty. Gen. John Hill, contained bans against coercing milk haulers to transport AMPI milk exclusively; against providing rebates to any milk processor; against exclusive arrangements with processors, and against what is known as "loading the pool."

CANNED FOOD BONANZA!

Did you know one of the oldest forms of convenience foods is canned food? Since Napoleon ordered an easily transportable, nutritious food which would not require special refrigeration for his march on Moscow, we have come to rely on canned foods as a basic method of food preservation. Thanks to modern technology, which continues to provide us with an increasing variety of fruits, vegetables, meats, and even desserts, you can enjoy many foods all year round, in every section of the country.

For a long time now we've been concerned about the higher prices we all must pay and about the shortages of many foods. While some foods are still in short supply and prices are still higher than we'd like, we are showing our concern by buying truck loads of foods so you can afford to stock up at some real old-fashioned prices.

Each family uses approximately 500 cans and jars of food each year, a part of nearly 27 million consumed in the U.S. annually. Right now is an excellent time to replenish your supply from a wide variety of "new pack" items, which have just been processed. Here are a few things to keep in mind while these special sales allow you to build your supply and save money, too.

Choose the style and quality for the ultimate use intended—whole or halves of vegetables and fruits frequently cost more than "cut-up" or "pieces," so choose only when appearance is especially important.

Read the label. It's really your window to the can and will help you make the best choice and plan for good nutrition.

Never buy or use bulged or leaky cans, slightly dented cans are usually all right, however. Screw-on lids or vacuum sealed lids on jars should be tight.

Store canned foods in a cool dry place. Date each for easier rotation of your supply at least every 12-18 months to avoid some quality loss. Glass containers should be stored in a closed cabinet or closet if possible and used in 6-8 months. Light can cause some quality loss.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Woke before dawn, tossing and turning and generally destroying the day. This is the time when problems (that will never arrive) come out of the dark and bite you.

No remedy for these pre-dawn shakes but to leap out of bed. There was light over the hills. It was almost sunup anyway.

Medics say you don't need as much sleep when you get some mileage on you. But 5:30 in the morning is ridiculous.

While sleeping, most people turn over in bed 22 to 45 times. This was studied by bed manufacturers — the more you turn, the sooner you have to buy a new bed.

They said it proved you didn't sleep as soundly as you think. I should be a joy to the bed people. When I get the 5 a.m. horrors, I spin like a top.

I let the cat in. She immediately lay down and went to sleep. This cat does not turn over at all while sleeping. A relaxed animal, waiting for the next can of cat food to be opened.

If you cannot sleep nights, try a bath in 100-degree water. Add a spoonful of mustard to it and a few drops of pine essence. (Sounds like you'd come out like a football stadium hot dog.)

Now get in the tub. Wrap your head in a towel dipped in ice water.

This is a sure fire recipe for sleep given to me by Avid Reader.

However, I'm afraid such preparations would keep me up all night.

This is National Procrastination Week. I'll go along with that. In Ohio, a sleepless fellow named Joe Smith told his talkative wife:

"No wonder I can't sleep with you yakking all night."

So Mrs. Smith got up and mixed him a glass of water with insect powder in it.

The "Sunday Journal and Star" is the week-end connecting news-link to your daily paper.

"Drink it," she said. "It's poison."

Joe was one who could take a joke. "You're lying," he said. "Ha, ha."

He polished off the glass. Downed the whole thing. Good chap. Good show. Sleep tight, Joe. R.I.P.

We are coming up on birthdays. (Maybe that's why I wake up with the 5 a.m. chills.)

Me and my sons. All of us Librans, ruled by sweet, loveable Venus.

I rolled a piece of paper in the typewriter.

I went in the bathroom and looked in the mirror. I am trying to raise hair — a Hair-raising Lady is helping me.

They put awfully bright lights in bathrooms. I may take them out. Put in candlelight.

I went back to the typewriter. For some reason the paper was still blank.

All kinds of advice is given by psychologists for the early morning blues that attack us all from time to time.

A Michigan prof said: "Going to bed with a good attitude may preclude the early morning anxieties. Plan something appealing. Like a vacation."

So I tried planning a few things. I planned putting paper in a typewriter and having it come out all typed. Automatically.

I planned parties. And woke up worrying about where I'd get the hors d'oeuvres.

I planned a trip. And had a horrible morning thinking I'd misplaced the travel checks. I had to get up and look for them — and the was the end of sleep.

Thus to the salt mines.

National Contest Picks LHS Girl

Carolynn L. Goodwin, a senior at Lincoln High School, has been named a semifinalist in the 11th annual National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students.

Carolynn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Goodwin of 2221 S St.

She is editor of Links, the high school yearbook, and a member of Peppers, the school's pep squad. Carolynn said she will probably enter the University of Nebraska-Lincoln next year, planning to study journalism.

She is one of four semifinalists in Nebraska and about 1,400 in the United States.

The semifinalists scored at the top among 50,000 black high school students who took a 1973 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

"By identifying and recognizing these able and highly motivated black youth, we hope to increase the educational opportunities that can prepare them for future professional and leadership roles," said L.C. McMillan, vice president of the sponsoring National Merit Scholarship Corp.

About 260 of the semifinalists will receive $1,000 one-time scholarships, and 190 semifinalists, four-year renewable scholarships worth up to $1,500 a year.

To continue in the competi-

Carolynn Goodwin

tion, the semifinalists must present creditable academic records and information about academic and extracurricular achievements.

Other Nebraska semifinalists were Adrienne A. Alston and Gary K. Brown, both of Omaha Central High School, and Phyllis E. Brown, of Bellevue High School.

County Board OKs Paving Contract for N.W. 56th

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday approved a contract with Crete Carrier Corp. for the paving of N.W. 56th for access to the firm's property.

Because the county had not appropriated funds for such a purpose, the agreement specifies that Crete Carrier will pay for the cost of the paving. The county will then reimburse the company for one-half of the total cost in the next fiscal year.

According to Duane Acklie, attorney for Crete Carrier, two bids were obtained for the project with Abel Const. Co. submitting the low bid of $23,845. The only other bid — $24,245 — was submitted by Dobson Bros. Const. Co.

The commissioners approved the Abel bid.

A similar access paving proposal slated to be presented Tuesday by the Kawasaki Motor Corp. was delayed one week at the request of the attorney for Kawasaki.

In other action, the board recommended approving the application of Donald and Leona Wolverton for a beer license in Kramer.

No one appeared in opposition to the application, and the applicants told the commissioners that they were purchasing the business where there is now a beer license.

The recommendation for approval of the license now goes to the State Liquor Control Commission.

7th Anti-Centrum Suit Is Filed

The seventh suit challenging Lincoln's Centrum Block was filed in Lancaster District Court Tuesday.

Mike Cohen of the First National Bank and Trust Co., which is the trustee for the estates of Abraham and Phillip Byron, filed the action in connection with property at 1109 O and 120 S. 11th.

Cohen asked the court to reverse the action of the City Council in declaring the block (bordered by O and N and between 11th and 12th) blighted and substandard; and to hold the council's action and the Urban Redevelopment Act under which the action was taken as invalid and unconstitutional.

The suit alleges that the action of the council was without foundation and fact, that it was arbitrary and capricious.

The buildings on the block have been approved by the city departments for occupation and are substantially occupied, the plaintiffs state.

They contend that the property is not conducive to ill health, transmission of disease, infant mortality, juvenile delinquency or crime.

The City of Lincoln proposed to redevelop the block into a parking facility and space for retail and commercial businesses.

Keeping County-City Bldg. Open At Night Advocated

Keeping the County-City Building open during the evening hours to accommodate the working public is being proposed by a Lancaster County commissioner candidate.

H. Bruce Hamilton, who is challenging veteran commissioner Kenneth Bourne for the third district commissioner post, said Tuesday that he favors keeping the building open after dinner until 9 or 10 o'clock in order to provide services for the working public.

"Ideally there should be county office branches in each quadrant of the county," he said,

Veterans Council Fully Committed To No Amnesty

The Nebraska Veterans Council has approved a resolution to continue a "total commitment" against amnesty.

The resolution says the council will not "relinquish, dilute or compromise this position."

The council said granting amnesty to draft dodgers and deserters would be a "gross injustice" to the judicial system, to the sacrifices of those who served and are still serving in the armed forces, to their families, to the prisoners of war and the missing in action, as well as to the United States.

The council said it "fully and completely" rejects the "fallacious notion that only those calling for amnesty have compassion, or compassion being reserved for those who fought and their families."

Penal Complex Inmate Allowed To File Charge

For the first time in 13 years, the Lancaster County attorney's office is allowing an inmate at the Nebraska Penal Complex to file an assault and battery complaint against a complex guard.

Inmate Jack L. Ernest will be allowed to file the charge against a guard who allegedly struck him on July 3, according to Ron Lahners, chief deputy county attorney.

"This is the first one (charge) I recall filed against a guard in the 13 years I've been with the county attorney's office," Lahners said.

Second Formal Complaint Filed Against Phone Firm

The Nebraska Public Service Commission has received its second formal complaint in recent months against the Blair Telephone Co.

A Fort Calhoun resident, Mrs. Sally R. Push, has filed a complaint asking the commission to order Blair to upgrade its service.

Mrs. Push, a rural letter carrier, said her telephone goes dead in the midst of a conversation, the firm is slow to act on complaints and there is a high level of background noise on the lines.

Mrs. Push said, "In case of a fire, I pray that someone in Ft. Calhoun can read smoke signals, because we surely cannot rely on the phone service."

The commission recently directed the independent Blair Telephone to lower its rates to Kennard residents due to the poor quality of service.

Mrs. Push's complaint has not yet come before the commission, according to Herb Sherdon, commission communications chief.

Blair and Fort Calhoun are in Washington County, north of Omaha.

ACTION LINE
Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

Four months ago I contracted with Sears Roebuck and Co., Gateway, to insulate a building of mine. I have been billed for the work three times, but, as far as I can tell, the work was never done. Phone calls haven't resulted in any action. Please help.

—Adolph Vanicek, Valparaiso

ACTION LINE: Credit Manager Leo Schwartzkopf of Sears Roebuck and Co., Gateway, said he'd be contacting you by mail soon.

He said that according to their records, your job was completed in July. Neither he nor your salesman knew of your phone calls.

Schwartzkopf offered his apology for the confusion and said he will straighten up the matter with you immediately.

Lincoln High students tear up and down the Randolph Bypass, south of the school, like it was the Indianapolis 500. Why isn't there a speed limit sign between Capital Parkway and 21st St.?

—R.L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dick Mickelson, city traffic engineer, said speed limit signs — in this case 35 m.p.h. — are usually spaced every three to four blocks.

If you'd like to request that a sign be put in a particular spot, contact the City of Lincoln Street Dept. traffic engineering office at 473-6450.

I'd like to put a new bottom on a large copper kettle. Is there any place in Lincoln that can do the repairing?

—Mercedes Johnson, Johnstown

ACTION LINE: After contacting several welding shops in Lincoln, Action Line found that fixing your copper kettle is not possible.

Bill Thomas, manager of Lincoln Welding Supply Inc., 1620 M St. said that copper cannot be welded. He said that possibly it could be fixed by soldering silver metal to repair the damage, but the coloring would be different from the rest of the kettle.

In June, I sent $2 to Golden Press, Great Neck, N.Y., for two Walt Disney pin-ups for my children. Now it's October and my children and I are getting tired of waiting. Please help.

—Mrs. Joseph Havlovic, Brainard

ACTION LINE: After contacting Golden Press, Mrs. G. Perry of the customer service department said the company had run out of the pin-ups. They were replaced on Sept. 20, 1974, she said, and the delivery would take up to three weeks.

She offered her apologies for any annoyance or inconvenience that might have been caused in the waiting.

I have a vacant house in Kramer electrically serviced by the Norris Public Power District. I've had the fuses out — using absolutely no juice at all — and still I get bills all the time for $18.50. I keep telling them there must be a mistake, but they contend that I owe the money. Help!

—Carl Mischnick, Crete

ACTION LINE: Norris Green of the Norris Public Power District (NPPD) Lincoln office said $18.50 is the minimum bimonthly rate, plus tax, for the 600 kilowatt minimum usage plan your property is listed under.

Green said a person can realize a considerable savings with this plan if the place is occupied and plenty of electricity is used.

However, other plans can cost you as little as $2.10 bimonthly if the electrical service is hooked up, but not used extensively.

"You've probably been misinformed," Green said and suggested you call him at 432-1530 to get your problem straightened out.

ACTION TIP: In today's health-conscious society, Americans spend about $300 million a year on vitamin supplements. Are the vitamin boosts really needed?

A new fact sheet from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration called Myths About Vitamins names the simplest, surest way to good nutrition as the proper selection of food and not vitamin pills.

For free copies of the fact sheet, write Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo 81009.

Please tell me if there is a good acupuncture doctor in Lincoln or nearby?

—Mrs. L.D. Potter

ACTION LINE: The Nebraska Medical Assn. reports that only one doctor in Nebraska is acquainted with acupuncture techniques — the ancient Chinese art of healing by inserting needles into selected points in the body.

The doctor, David Rosenbuer, 9909 Broadmoor Drive, Omaha, is an anesthesiologist but has made use of acupuncture techniques.

Further information about the technique can be obtained from the Californ. Medical Assn., 693 Sutter St., San Francisco 94102.

How can I get an owner's manual for a 1961 Oldsmobile F-85?

—Jean Budler, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Oldsmobile Motor Division in Lansing, Mich., reports only owner's manuals from 1965 to the present are kept on hand. If you have a specific problem, you might write the division at 920 Townsend St., Lansing, Mich.

Three yodels for the Swiss

Swiss People Are Proud And Honest

DEAR ABBY: I understand that a few years back, you had a letter in your column from someone who asked why the Swiss were such an arrogant people.

The writer stated that a Swiss will let you know five minutes after you meet him that he is not German, French or Italian — but SWISS.

My ancestors came from Berne, Switzerland. Therefore, I am interested in the way you answered that.

WISCONSINITE

DEAR WIS: First, the Swiss are not "arrogant." They are a proud people who have much about which to be proud. They have fresh air and clean government. (Their president serves for one year only, and cannot be re-elected.) They produce the world's finest chocolate, cheeses, watches and precision instruments. Their people are honest, industrious and well-mannered. Their skiing is unbeatable and their banks unbreakable. And if that's not something to yodel about, I don't know what is!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 53-year-old widower. I have a nice home, a responsible position, good health and an adequate income.

Some time ago, I met an attractive widow and we've been seeing a lot of each other. She's pretty, has a good figure and is a fine cook and housekeeper. We have the same tastes in music, the theatre, sports and literature. We couldn't be better matched had we been selected for each other by a computer.

We want to get married, but we have a problem. I have a dog who has been my constant companion for eight years. Never having had children, King was a great comfort to us during my wife's terminal illness. He was like a member of my family.

Unfortunately the lady has a dog and cat to whom she is equally attached. We've tried to bring these animals together without success. Both dogs are big and they fight to the point of trying to kill each other.

If I bring King to the lady's apartment, he intimidates her cat, and she snarls and hisses and runs up the curtain.

We've discussed our problem with our friends and they're no help. Frankly, they think we're nuts. Is there a solution that will work?

WANTS TO MARRY

DEAR WANTS: The widow has the advantage, two pets to one. Why not find a good home for King? Or flip a coin to see which dog goes. If King "wins," the cat remains a problem — unless the two can adjust. (If you two "perfectly-matched" humans can't overcome the animal barrier between you, you are indeed "nuts.")

DEAR ABBY: A Florida wife gripes because the bug spray her husband uses on their property makes him passionate. This is a problem? Is it possible to find out what brand of bug spray her husband uses? And if the brand name isn't available, could you please ask her to send her husband? COULD USE HIM IN OMAHA

DEAR ABBY: I am 19, going to college and work part-time in a department store. There is a guy who works here who is very good-looking. He's 31 and married. He has made advances to me in the stockroom in the back of the store. I really am attracted to him, but the fact that he is married stops me from going out with him. (He's asked me.)

Please advise me. I'm weakening.

KNOWS THE SCORE

DEAR KNOWS: Tell good-looking to get lost. So far, the score is no hits, no runs, no errors. And if you're smart, you'll keep it that way.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Open lead - queen of hearts.

A hand reported by M. Harrison-Gray in the British Bridge Magazine has points of interest. The deal occurred in a team of four championship in England many years ago.

South got to five spades doubled and West led a heart. Declarer won with the ace and returned a low trump. Realizing that his partner had to have the two missing aces for his opening bid, West went up with the ace of spades and shifted to the king of diamonds.

He was hoping to get a diamond ruff, after the king held, by continuing with a diamond to the ace followed by a third round of diamonds.

Rape Crises Line Begins Sunday

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

All systems are go. The countdown is underway.

The Rape Crisis Line will be plugged into the Personal Crisis Service switchboard Sunday.

Rape victims and others in any way concerned with rape or attempted rape can receive assistance and on-the-spot counseling and referrals by calling 475-5171 and asking for the Rape Crisis Line.

The new telephone assistance network is the brainchild of the Lincoln Coalition Against Rape, an infant organization which held its first public meeting June 19.

More than 25 volunteer counselors have been trained to field calls 24 hours per day. They will help victims locate counselors, outline police, hospital and trial procedures and give information relating to pregnancy and venereal disease precautions, said Penny Hamilton, coalition chairperson.

Twenty-five rapes were reported in Lincoln during the first half of 1974, the same number as was reported during all of 1973, Ms. Hamilton said. "It is a community problem and the community should respond to it."

Citing a Federal Bureau of Investigation statistic that 42,420 forcible rapes were reported nationally last year, Ms. Hamilton characterized rape as "the fastest growing crime of violence in the United States."

"Each year thousands of women are raped and they choose not to discuss their experiences," Ms. Hamilton said in a prepared statement. "Because silence jeopardizes the physical and emotional well-being of rape victims, . . . groups are organizing across the country to challenge the myths that perpetuate the silence among rape victims and to provide a much needed community service."

The installation of the Rape Line follows a nation trend allowing rape victims the opportunity to speak immediately to a sympathetic person.

Sue Aitcheson, education task force chairperson, said that half of the victims know their attackers and half of the rapes nationally take place in the victims' homes.

Referring to studies conducted in Philadelphia, Pa. and Denver, Colo., she said that 48% of the identified rapists are close friends, relatives, neighbors or acquaintances of their victims. "The only identifying characteristic of a rape victim is she's a woman," Ms. Aitcheson said. According to Nebraska law, only a woman can be raped.

The trained counselors — all of them women for the time being — will encourage the victim to report the incident and provide the police department with a description of the rapist, said Kathy Smith, co-chairperson of the telephone network. Reporting a rape does not mean the victim must seek prosecution, Ms. Aitcheson added.

Cooperation with the Lincoln Police Department is one of the coalition's Rape Line policies, pointed out Kathy Nelsen, counseling chairperson.

Rape Line counselors will not provide transportation to the police department or hospital, she added. Such a procedure might place the volunteers in jeopardy and leave no back-up counselors to field incoming calls.

Rather, the victims will be encouraged to seek transportation from the police or, for those who do not want police assistance, from the Open Door Health Center.

The Lincoln Police Department has been "very responsive, very quick to change their policy," said Ms. Smith, pointing out that a policewoman now is on call to accompany a rape victim to the hospital and to be present when statements are taken.

Counselors also are prepared to discuss the incident with friends and relatives of a rape victim, Ms. Hamilton said.

The Lincoln Coalition Against Rape also presents workshops for civic groups, is preparing legislation which proposes to change Nebraska's rape laws and is considering investigating the fate of a convicted rapist.

FOR HELP . . . information and counseling, call 475-5171.

Cavett's Network Bosses May Have Last Laugh

By COLLEEN DISHON
Chicago, Ill. — Sometime talk show host Dick Cavett is a very funny fellow whose network bosses may have his last laugh scheduled.

The truth is, says Cavett, jumping up as the hotel phone rang, the future is a bit unclear: ABC may or may not be paying his salary next year.

"You are in the lobby," he says, responding to the comment of the caller who has interrupted his breakfast of waffles.

"How's it look?"

A radio man with no appointment pleads for an interview.

Another bite, another call "You've got Bette Davis up there?"

Nope. The other night on the Cavett show, but not here.

He definitely never should have told the bell captain that he was hiding Bette Davis in his closet.

But Dick Cavett can't help himself. The man who grew up hanging onto every Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Red Skelton quip to become a devotee of Mort Sahl, was bound to grow up something of a smart alec. Combined with a Nebraska farm-boy smile, however, it has taken him a long way and endeared him to many, not the least of whom are the ladies with varying shades of purple hair.

"Where does it come from?" The bluish ruse, he means

"Leftover from the Monday wash." it was suggested

Besides, though most believe Cavett is the clear television favorite of eight out of ten post-graduate students, it's the true-blue women who are among the Yale alumni flocking to get autographs in his new book, "Cavett."

And, they are also the ones, he confesses, who have been tucking notes inside, saying, "Kiss me."

As Christopher Porterfield, with whom Cavett co-authored his autobiography, observed:

"One of the truest comments I ever heard Dick make about himself was, 'I have talent for taking advantage of situations.' Broadly and deeply defined, it may well be his greatest talent."

Cavett is wearing a blue tank top, jeans and moccasins. He doesn't look like the kind of star who would go back to his high school reunion. But he did: last June. And he's still puzzling about how it hit him.

The happy and less-than happy moments of his teens came rushing back. The same group dynamics that existed in his high school days took over, he says. "I still reacted to the bully as if he were the bully," he admitted. And when his former classmates started asking him for signatures, it startled.

The clock had chimed midnight, and the celebrity had briefly turned into little-Dick-with-quivers-inside, the same Dick who once met Hope outside a stage door in Lincoln and said to himself: "Gee, if I were famous I wouldn't have to worry about being smooth like some of the jocks in my class, or about sweating when I dance with girls."

On the other hand, it's a well-publicized fact that Cavett had a warm, Walton-wrapped childhood and like Johnny Carson, Nebraska's other talk-show host, was a cheerful boy magician, playing the local circuit of church socials and civic clubs.

He turned serious long enough to graduate from Yale, but he never discarded his bag of tricks entirely. In New York, as a glorified errand boy for Time magazine, he once stopped Jack Paar on the pretence of scouting a possible cover story when, in reality, he wanted to sell him a sheaf of jokes for the "Tonight" show. He did.

Wording his way to his own nightly talk show, now out to every other Thursday, he joined Paar's writing staff.

"What will happen in TV land?" I ask, attributing my ignorance to the fact that I do not "cover" television.

"That's it. You do cover it," says Cavett. With a cloth, he explains, just the way the bird in his cage goes to sleep at night.

"What's to become of Dick?" he sighs.

Women's Movement Invades Farmer's Almanac

By LLOYD GREEN

Chicago — The women's movement has finally made it. It's successfully invaded the sacrosanct pages of the Farmer's Almanac. Almanac Editor Ray Geiger gave in to the movement in his 1975 edition which is just off the press.

Seems as how some women decided Geiger wasn't "A good ole boy" after reading the alleged jokes in the 1974 Almanac.

Some Almanac jokes poke fun at women's foibles. Never mind that other jokes look wryly at men, teenagers, senior citizens, hippies, politicians, farmers and everyone else.

Examples:

— "By the time a man realizes that maybe his father was right, he usually has a son who thinks he's wrong."

— "Teacher: Did your father help you with the problem? "Kid: No. I got it wrong myself."

—"Politicians are like old trousers: They only come clean in hot water."

Well, you get the idea. Anyway, Geiger decided to try to put himself in good standing with the women and explained:

"Women who are battling for equal rights somehow get up tight about many things that a short time ago they would have taken in stride.

"While we have our moments of disfavor, we reserve our right to be fair to those women of NOW (National Organization for Women) and yet not be run over by their zeal to the extent that we lose our sense of humor."

To that end, Geiger printed a prayer in the 1975 Almanac written by Irene Davall, national co-ordinator of the Feminist Party.

The prayer starts out, "Hear our humble prayer, o Goddess." It goes on to ask help "For all that are overworked, underpaid and treated inequitably." It also asks assistance "for all that are in pain or dying of boredom in the cages of suburban homes." It ends "A-Women."

Directly below the prayer, some quips are printed which may or may not please all of the women all of the time:

— "NOW women will have reached equality when they spend $2 million to build a home for unwed fathers."

— "I'll bet the time ain't far off when a woman won't know any more than a man" — Will Rogers 1925.

— "If women must insist on having men's privileges, they have to take men's chances."

In case you're not interested in Geiger's problems with feminists, the Almanac also will tell you when to plant corn; that Wednesday is your lucky day if you're a Pisces, and that it's going to be cold and snowy in the winter and hot and humid in the summer.

There's also a page telling how a UCLA professor has developed a method of making building bricks by baking pressed cow dung and ground glass.

If you don't care how low you stoop . . . if weeks-long stained fingers don't bother you . . . if you don't mind long hours for small rewards, this is a great time of year because the nuts are out.

(No smart remarks about politicians, please.)

Lincolnland isn't overflowing with palatable nuts, but there are more than enough wild black walnut trees along the waterways to fill lots of jars with a special delicacy for Christmas candies and breads, and Thanksgiving turkey dressings.

However, there's more work than eating ahead if you intend to join the squirrels, Euell Gibbons and Bradford Angiers of this world.

The first thing to remember about nutting is to forget all but walnuts.

After one season of black walnuts, you may even want to forget them; but at least start off by ignoring acorns and most chestnuts and hickory nuts. All of which can be found in the area.

They can be eaten, but those nuts are more edible than palatable. Indians soaked them and applied a lye "wash" made from ashes before the taste was neutralized.

Some chestnuts and hickory nuts are delicious, but they are hard to locate. Acorns can be turned into a flour-like meal, which may be used along with wheat flour, but the process is lengthy and of dubious success.

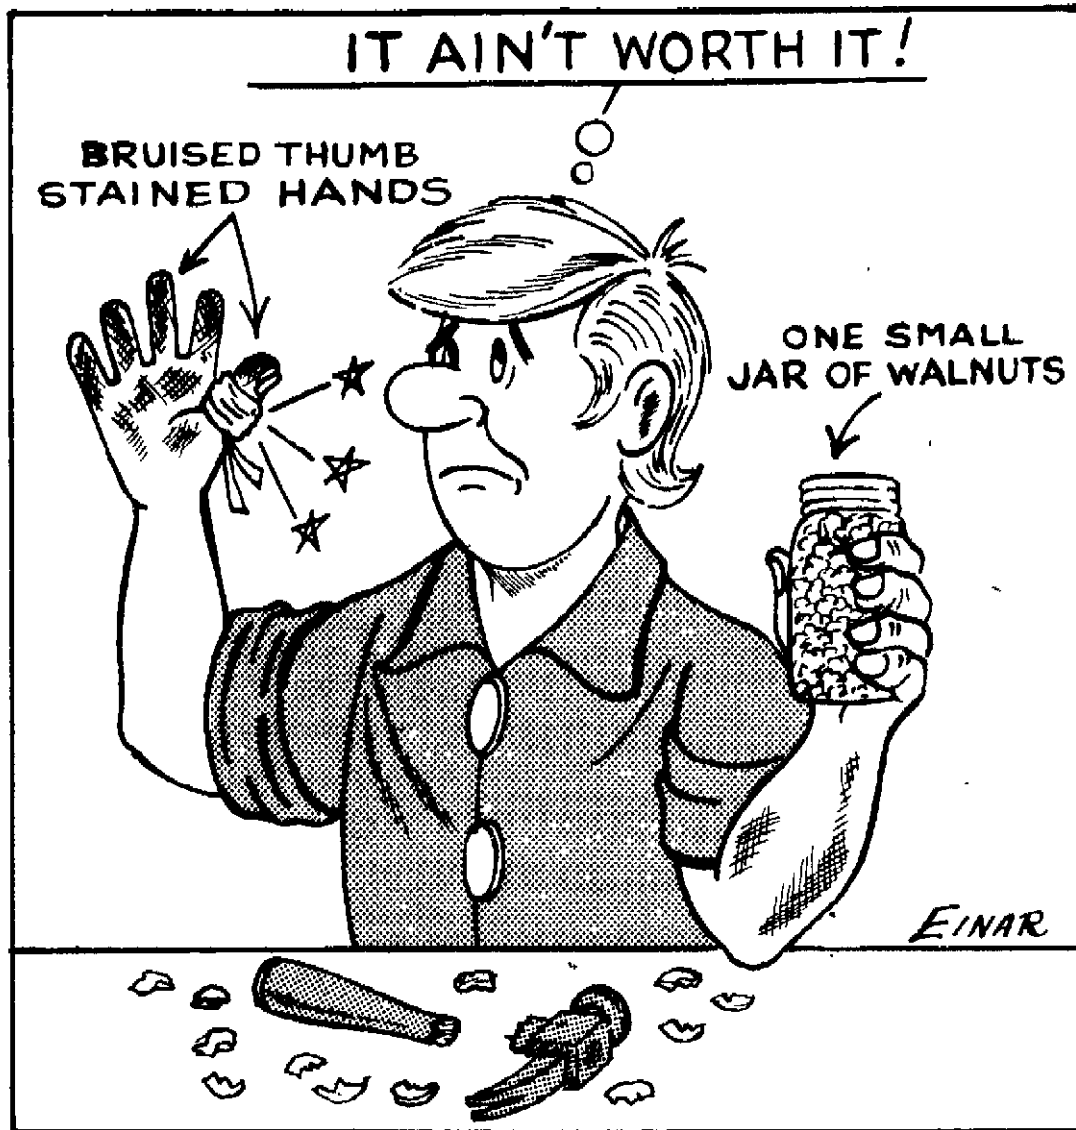

Acorns seem tempting because squirrels so obviously like them. But enough raw acorns can make people sick, even if one could eat enough. Acorns are especially bitter because of a high concentration of tannic acid.

If the word for acorns is "yuuch!", the word for walnuts is "work!"

The easiest thing about the walnut harvest is the harvesting; that involves only stooping.

Considering the amount of waste involved in wild walnuts, harvesters have to gather much more than might be imagined. Three bushels of the original, as-is, husk-and-all nut doesn't yield very much meat.

Before the green husk dries and imparts a strong color and taste to the nut, it must be stripped off. All that is required for this operation is strong fingers and rubber gloves. The husk has a chemical which, after exposure to the air, turns fingers black for weeks. And one pair of gloves isn't enough. Sooner or later the chemical works its way through the fabric and fingers begin turning black.

Also, stripping off the husks isn't a job for the squeamish for under the husk are often Walnut Husk Fly maggots, according to Neal Jennings, district extension forester for Southeast Nebraska.

Jennings, whose fingers are also black this time of year, says the maggots are only a bother and don't damage the nut.

After the husk is stripped, shells should be spread out in a dry place to "cure," Jennings says.

But collecting and dehusking are the easiest steps. Next comes cracking and picking. Wild walnut shells are tough and require a hard blow with a hammer to shatter. Then the pieces of nutmeat must be picked out, a tedious process at best.

What walnutters have after all this is: a lot of time spent, stained hands, and a few jars of the best taste in the United States.

But the effort isn't worth it to some people. Roger Welsh — weed authority candidate, humorist and wild foods expert (not necessarily in that order) — says it's best to leave all the nuts to the squirrels and start digging for easier off-the-land foods like arrowroot and cattail roots.

Some Babysitting Exemptions Explained

Babysitters working less than 20 hours a week will be exempted from the new minimum wage law covering domestic workers, the U.S. Labor Department has decided.

This regulation covering babysitters who work in the children's own home was reported in the Monday edition of the Wall Street Journal.

The regulations, a part of the 1974 Fair Labor Standards Act, affects persons who babysit in the children's home. The new regulations also require the employers of covered domestic help to keep pay and hours records for three years and to explain the values employers may assign for meals and other benefits.

Terpsichorean Club Names New Officers

The Terpsichorean Dance Club will begin the dinner-dance season Sat., Oct. 5 at 6:30 p.m. at the Airport Holiday Inn.

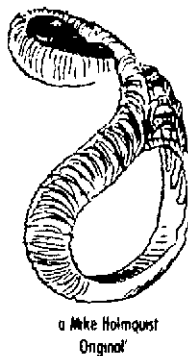

New officers for the group are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Schmidt, president; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, vice-president; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ross, treasurer, and Mr. and Mrs. John Alloway, secretary.

First Woman To Command Precinct

Detroit (UPI) — The new commander in Detroit's 7th Precinct takes roll in a soft, lilting voice and carries a .38 police special tucked in her purse.

She is Lt. Virginia Barr, 43, the first woman in the history of the Detroit Police Department to command a precinct station.

The 17-year department veteran is also the only woman in the Mack Avenue precinct, and now gives orders to 107 men on the afternoon shift.

"I don't anticipate any problems," said the slim, raven-haired commander. "After the men get accustomed to me, I'm sure they'll treat me just like any of the lieutenants."

Then she paused, laughed and said, "I'm not sure if that's good or bad."

Lt. Barr, who is married, runs the command desk in the station which is in charge of all precinct operations and from which all major decisions are made.

She doesn't consider her new post much different from her former duties in the women's and children's service section, where she supervised a squad of 12 officers investigating rape, child abuse and neglect cases.

She decided to join the force while working as a state welfare investigator, a job in which she had daily contact with policewomen about her clients.

Lt. Barr admitted "some apprehension" as she stood before a platoon of officers and called the roll for the first time.

Although there was some ribbing among officers about getting fresh haircuts for the occasion, one officer said he and his colleagues would treat her "like any other superior officer" — with respect.

"She'll give us an order and we'll do it," he said. "It doesn't matter whether the officer is a man or a woman."

SeNHPC To Seek Aid In Developing Plan

Opinions will be sought from Lancaster County residents on health needs and health care systems at a public meeting in November, according to Bill Joern, executive director of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council (SeNHPC).

The SeNHPC will hold meetings in each of the 17 counties in the southeast Nebraska region to assist it in developing a comprehensive Area Health Plan.

"These county hearings will be an important part of the information gathering and priority setting by SeNHPC," Joern said.

The development of a comprehensive Area Health Plan has been identified as a priority work item for fiscal year 1975 by the SeNHPC board of directors, according to Arthur Blackman, President of the SeNHPC board.

Joern said extensive participation by both health consumers and providers is a necessary element of SeNHPC's work.

Approximately 250 persons will be involved in putting together the plan.

The exact date of the Lancaster county hearing will be announced later.

Days Of Making Collector Pay Postage Nearly Over

People seem to have some animosity against anyone they owe money to.

That's why Lincoln post offices get about 10 letters a day — more at the beginning of each month — addressed to businesses but bearing no stamp, said Al Strain, mailing requirements clerk at Lincoln's main post office.

People figured they'd let the business pay for the postage on bills, he said. And most businesses did, after letters were forwarded to them postage due.

But U.S. Postmaster General E.T. Klassen has announced that any letters with any postage due will be returned to senders after Nov. 17.

Strain said it would do no good to leave return addresses off the envelopes because such letters would be sent to a "dead letter office" where postal employees are authorized to open the envelope, see who sent it and send it back.

There are five major parts to a modern hearing aid, some of which contain as many as 20 major components.

1. A microphone - to pick up and respond to sound waves.
2. To increase intensity of the sound waves picked up.
3. A battery - the source of electrical power required to operate the amplifier.
4. A receiver - to reproduce amplified sound waves close to the eardrum.
5. Controls - to vary the intensity and frequency response of the amplified sounds.

Modern hearing aids today can be fitted to almost every known kind of hearing loss.

Unicam Studies Release Rule Urged

By The Associated Press

Still smarting from the release of the celebrated Department of Roads efficiency study, the legislature decided Tuesday to give its staff a lower profile.

A legislative fiscal researcher released a preliminary report last month which claimed the maintenance crews of the Department of Roads operated at a level of 59% efficiency.

State Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha asked the executive board of the Legislative Council to develop guidelines for information released by legislative researchers.

Cavanaugh said the staff should gather information and not draw conclusions.

The executive board decided to channel all requests for staff studies through the board.

The board also decided to release several studies at its meetings rather than releasing the studies through individual senators.

The studies to be released through the board include a comparison with the University of Nebraska and other Big Eight universities, and a legislative staff estimate of the amount of revenue Nebraska's taxes will raise next year.

In another matter, Stan Matzke, director of the Department of Administrative Services, asked the board to appoint two state senators to work with the department to develop a uniform system of paying state employees.

Some employees are now paid monthly and others are paid bi-weekly.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue and Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora were appointed to work with Matzke.

The board also heard that the University of Nebraska would want $775,000 a year to operate the new fieldhouse in Lincoln.

The report prompted Sen. Eugene Mahoney to say "everybody is going to be there (before the legislature) for the same dollar. It is going to be interesting how it is going to be divided up this time."

'Las Vegas Of East' Put Up To Voters

By The Associated Press
Americans will vote in November for candidates for governor, Congress and dozens of lower offices. And, depending on where they live, they will also vote on:

—Whether they want to create a "Las Vegas of the East."

—Whether they want to electorally to have the final say on detonating nuclear devices and placing them in the ground.

—Whether they want politicians to disclose sources of income.

—Whether they want the state legislature to set interest rates.

Those measures are among the proliferation of referenda, propositions and state constitutional amendments which around this year on ballots in 50 states.

They include fixtures like technical changes in legislative and constitutional procedures; semifixtures like proposals to legalize lotteries and bingo and outlaw busing; a half-dozen election reform and ethics proposals, some inspired by Watergate, and oddities like the proposal on nuclear devices, which is on the ballot in Colorado.

The "Las Vegas of the East" would be Atlantic City, N.J., the once glittering resort that has become a victim of urban decay.

Voters in New Jersey, who overwhelmingly approved in 1969 a lottery that has become one of the nation's most successful, will vote this year on whether to legalize, casino gambling.

The proposal is expected to be approved, and Gov. Brendan T. Byrne says he will act to have casinos limited first to Atlantic City. Critics say they are afraid legalized gambling will bring more organized crime to a state that already has its quota, and they maintain that once casinos are opened in Atlantic City it will be impossible to keep them from other cities.

Colorado's nuclear device referendum is a successor to the successful campaign among environmentalists two years ago which barred the spending of state money on the 1976 Winter Olympics and led to their relocation.

The proposal would prohibit the placement in the ground of any nuclear device except when approved by the voters at a general election. It would also require that the governor designate a state agency or official to make sure there is enough money to provide compensation for any injuries or destruction of property.

Proponents say a yes vote would show Colorado residents are serious about preserving the environment and keeping the state from becoming "the playground" of the Atomic Energy Commission. There have been two nuclear experiments in Colorado, both aimed at fracturing gas-bearing sandstone formations to promote easier production of natural gas.

Among other environmental measures on the ballot is one in Nevada which would tax persons who try to develop agricultural land or land designated for open space. And a controversial proposal in Utah would create a state land-use planning commission.

Among the political reform items is one in Oregon, which would require elected officials, candidates for office and high-level appointees to list employment that provides more than 10 per cent of their income and list their property holdings, business affiliations and the names of lobbyists with whom they are affiliated.

In Maryland, where the scandal that led to former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's no-contest plea to income tax evasion is still fresh, there is a proposal that would require the suspension of public officials who are convicted of a felony or misdemeanor related to their duties. They would automatically be removed from office when appeals are exhausted.

Idaho's election reform proposal was placed on the ballot after the state legislature rejected attempts to enact a code of ethics for legislators and campaign spending and lobbying reforms. The measure requires all candidates for state offices, including legislators, to report contributions over $50. It also requires lobbyists to report on their activities and how much they spend on legislation.

Arkansas' interest proposal would repeal the state's usury law with its 10 per cent limit on interest and let the legislature set interest rates. It is backed up some bankers as a way to stop the flow of money from Arkansas banks to banks outside the state.

The measure is opposed by both the Democratic and Republican parties and their major candidates. One of them, John Harris Jones, the GOP candidate for the U.S. Senate, is a banker, but says the proposal is inflationary.

Colorado's antibusing amendment was fostered by a busing plan in Denver. It is on the ballot despite a warning from state officials that the courts will declare it unconstitutional. Proponents say they want the people of the state to express their opinion on the subject.

Maryland has a related proposal to provide state funds to private schools for transportation, books and teaching materials. Proponents expect to get votes as a result of federally ordered desegregation plans in Baltimore and its suburbs, which are expected to increase private school enrollment.

Oregon voters are among the first being asked to decide whether to make it a crime to distribute obscene material and run massage parlors. The proposal defines as obscene any material appealing to the prurient interest and without literary, scientific or artistic value. Critics call it censorship and say the standards are to vague.

California's ballot, usually heavy with controversial proposals, is relatively sedate this year. The proposal generating the most interest is one that would declare a stretch of the Stanislaus River a scenic area in an effort to stop the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers from building a dam there.

In addition to the New Jersey casino gambling referendum, the gambling proposals include one in Kansas to legalize bingo and another to add Washington to the list of states with lotteries.

Rich, Powerful Men Commune In Grove

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A multimillionaire captain of industry wrestles scenery across a stage. A famous general dusts off light bulbs. A bank president checks the spear he will tote in the evening's skit.

The scene is the annual two-week summer encampment at Bohemian Grove, one of America's oldest and most exclusive social events. The first took place in 1880.

The gentlemen noted are at play, along with some 1,500 others like them — rich, powerful, influential men who serve on the higher echelons of finance, government, politics, business empires, the arts and sciences and the professions.

Bohemian Grove, a 2,700-acre collection of distinctively named rustic camps with facilities to support "The Greatest Men's Party on Earth," sprawls among giant redwoods on the edge of the Russian River 65 miles north of San Francisco.

The quote is the name of a new book by John van der Zee, who sneaked in as a waiter to secretly gather information on the property whose entrance bears a sign threatening arrest to the uninvited.

Van der Zee's book, and another by G. William Domhoff, sparked new interest in the powerful club with roots that go back to San Francisco in the early 1870s.

Many people recall Bohemian Grove from a 1971 incident involving then-President Richard Nixon, a member of the Bohemian Club since 1953.

Nixon, a resident of the Grove's "Cave Man's Camp," was to be off-the-record speaker for the encampment's annual Lakeside Talk. Nelson Rockefeller had given the Lakeside Talk in 1963, as did the late President Herbert Hoover years earlier.

When word got out that Nixon was going to lose himself in a grove of redwood trees to give a confidential talk to some of the most powerful men in America, a flap ensued among White House reporters covering the President.

They threatened to cover the event by hook or crook, and the club's embarrassed leaders asked Nixon to cancel his appearance. The White House announced the cancellation. According to Domhoff, Nixon in a telegram "asked the club president to continue to lead people into the woods," and said that he in turn "would lead people out of the woods."

Anyone, Nixon wrote, "could aspire to be president of the United States, but only few could aspire to be president of the Bohemian Club."

The club expects rivalries to be put aside in an encampment. Domhoff said that in 1970, for instance, then-Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel was a guest of club member Fred L. Hartley, president of Union Oil. At the time Hickel was deep in sensitive negotiations over the disastrous 1969 oil spill in the Santa Barbara Channel. Union spilled the oil.

The camp suggests an institution of huge power despite the fact it originally came about to give men of influence and talent respite from their responsibilities, a return to carefree innocence.

The midsummer encampments "have long been a major showcase where leaders of business, industry, education, the arts and politics come to examine each other," said a journalist who tried to cover Rockefeller's Lakeside Talk.

The encampment is the major activity of the Bohemian Club, headquartered in San Francisco. In the plush confines of a six-story building here, writes Domhoff, members eat, drink, gamble, read newspapers and attend theatricals in a 600-seat basement theater also used to rehearse encampment productions.

But the Grove is the club's reason for being.

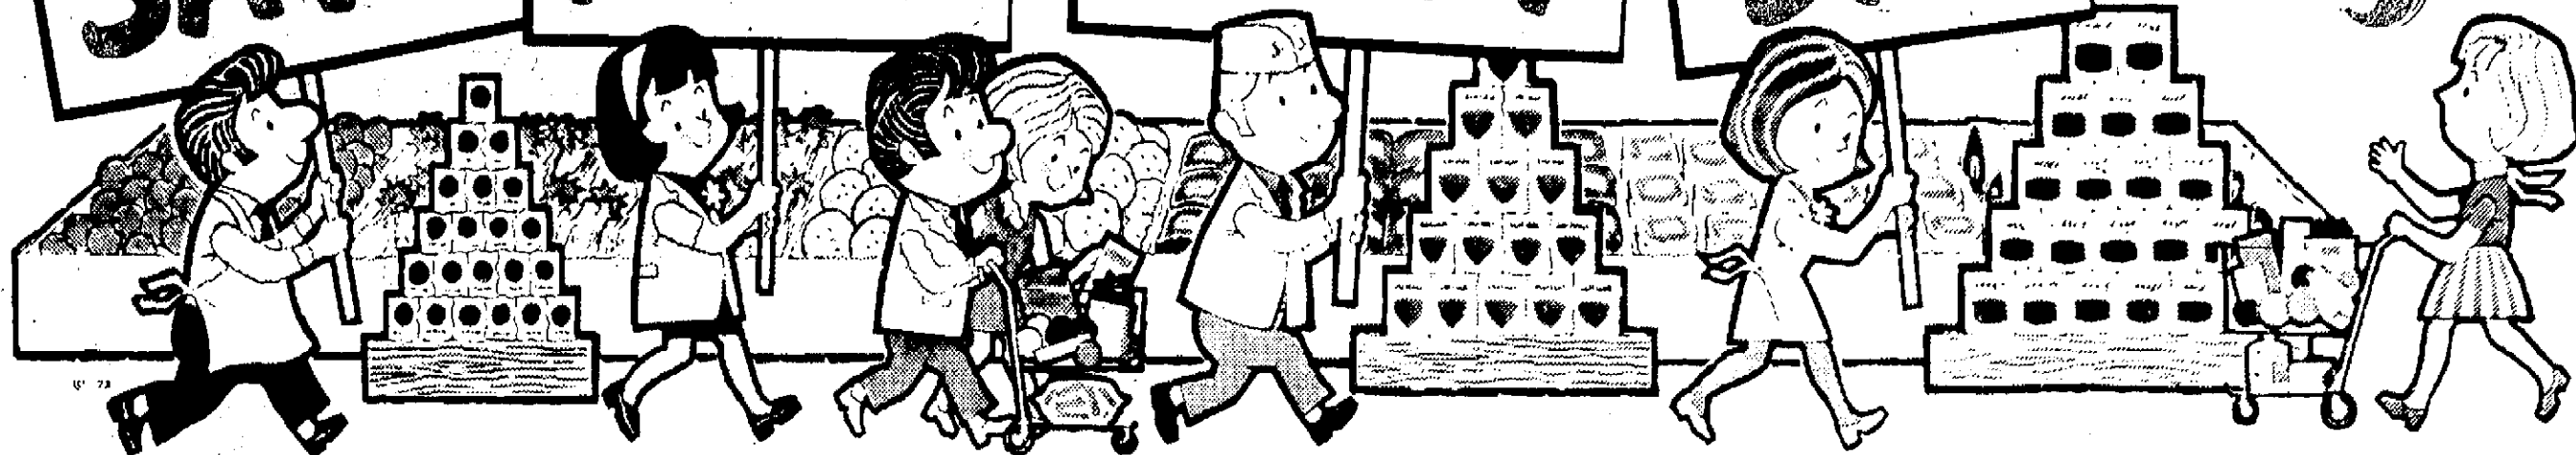

Intellectual stimulation in the form of informal talks at the Grove is reserved for a special meadow where members in years past heard the views of former President Eisenhower before he took office, author Herman Wouk, Robert Kennedy when he was attorney general, and Neil Armstrong when he returned from the moon.

Membership is by invitation and involves an ordeal of interviews, secret probes, membership polls and more probing worthy of a full FBI check.

Currently, Domhoff said, more than 800 are on the regular membership waiting list, with another 600 on the nonresident waiting list.

Ord's Suelter Chosen Prep Player Of Week

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

No, Greg Suelter doesn't leap tall buildings with a single bound. Nor does he change his clothes in a telephone booth.

But he's being called the Superman ball carrier in the Nebraska prep football ranks this fall and merits the fourth Sunday Journal and Star Player of the Week award.

In leading Ord to the No. 1 Class B rating, Suelter has averaged 229.7 yards rushing and 11.8 yards per carry in four games.

Here's his game-by-game, accomplishments:

- In 24-14 win over Columbus Scoutus — Carried 23 times for 212 yards (10.8 average) and scored a touchdown.
- In 33-6 win over Grand Island Northwest — Rushed for 179 yards on 17 carries (10.5 average) and scored four touchdowns.
- In 31-12 win over Holdrege — Finished with 220 yards rushing on 20 carries for 11.0 average.
- In 42-12 win over Albion — Accumulated whopping 308 yards on only 18 carries (17.1 average) and scored four touchdowns on runs of 18, 46, 53 and 80 yards.

Suelter's most recent performance against Albion gives him 919 yards rushing this season. If he maintains that prolific pace, he'll finish the season with more than 2,000 yards for the Chants' 9-game regular season schedule.

Suelter, who gained all-conference acclaim last fall while leading the Chants to the Central 10 Conference championship, credits his blocking more than himself for his torrid start.

"He's really appreciative of his teammates," relates Ord coach Fran Hummel. "Every time Greg comes back to the huddle after a long run, he's thanking his blockers. He's just not the kind of kid who thinks he's getting all those yards by himself."

Others who had outstanding games last weekend and will receive Player of the Week cards include:

Howard Miele, Lincoln Southeast — Junior defensive tackle's two fumble recoveries in the last seven minutes, including one for a touchdown, helped Knights rally past Hastings, 20-9.

Jack Gleason, Lexington — Senior halfback-safely rushed for 133 yards on 20 carries, was in on 10 tackles and intercepted a pass in Minutemen's shutout of Ogallala. His 4-game rushing total is 444 yards on only 55 carries.

Class D

- | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1—Medicine Valley (3-0) | 6—Nelson (3-1) |
| 2—Shickley (3-0) | 7—Alliance St. Agnes (3-1) |
| 3—Loomis (4-0) | 8—Gurley (4-0) |
| 4—Lyman (4-0) | 9—Clarks (3-0) |
| 5—Fairmont (3-0) | 10—Lynch (3-0) |

Comment — Although idle last week, Medicine Valley advances to No. 1 in light of Alliance St. Agnes' loss to Minutemen. Most impressive Class D wins were registered against previously unbeaten Class C teams — Shickley over Friend (7-0) and Nelson over Lawrence (8-6).

Eight Man

- | | |
|---------------------|-------------------|
| 1—East Butler (3-0) | 6—Bartlett (4-0) |
| 2—Adams (4-0) | 7—Barneston (4-0) |

| 4—Gresham (4-0) | 9—Giltner (4-0) |
| 5—Wheatland (4-0) | 10—Yutan (4-0) |

Comment — List of unbeaten ratings challengers has reduced to Arthur (4-0), Brady (3-0), Cedar Bluffs (2-0), Chambers (2-0), Eustis (4-0) and Lewiston (4-0). Bartley and Beaver Valley tied, 20-20, last week and each own 2-0-1 records.

Osborne Hopes Thomas 'Not Gone'

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Bobby Thomas, Nebraska's sophomore split end and kick return man, has missed practice Monday and Tuesday and Coach Tom Osborne says he hasn't talked to him and doesn't know his whereabouts.

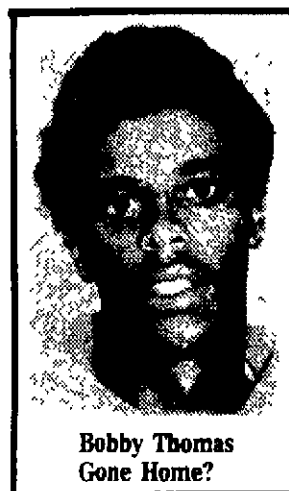

"I hope he's not gone, but it looks pretty serious," Osborne said after Tuesday's workout in Memorial Stadium. "There won't be a decision until I talk to him, but it's not my job to go chasing him. He has to want to play."

Thomas is a 5-8, 151-pound speedster who has returned four punts for 40 yards one kickoff for 15 yards and caught one pass for 14 yards in three NU games this season.

"The first time I knew anything was when he didn't show up for practice Monday afternoon," Osborne said. "He attended the squad meeting Sunday. He was up to see me Monday but I was at the Extra Point Club meeting and he didn't wait around. I talked to his mother who told me as far as she knew he was still in Lincoln."

In event Thomas has quit the team, Osborne said Chuck Malito, who has been alternating with Thomas as the No. 2 split end, would backup starter Ritch

Bobby Thomas
Gone Home?

Bahe and the coaching staff will start getting Ron Nitzel ready. Plans have been to redshirt Nitzel, a 6-2 junior from Grand Island.

The punt returning job would go to Jimmy Burrow and Bahe and to John O'Leary when he is cleared to play.

"Last week Thomas was behind Bahe and alternating with Malito and he may have seen it as a demotion," Osborne said. "But we alternate people all the time."

Osborne said Thomas wasn't blocking good in the early games and the staff got on him and his blocking improved.

O'Leary, who suffered a hairline jaw fracture two weeks ago at Wisconsin, still has a chance to play, but a decision won't be made until doctor's look at a protective device made by trainer Paul Schneider. That should come Wednesday morning.

Osborne hopes the answer is "yes" because he would like to use him, even if only briefly, against Minnesota so he'll be ready to go against Missouri in the Big Eight opener here Oct. 12.

The Huskers are banged up at other spots as well. Wingback Don Westbrook, who got a jolt to the thigh last Saturday, ran some Tuesday. I-backs Jeff Moran still is limping on a bad foot and Monte Anthony has a sore shoulder.

Only completely healthy I-back is Dave Gillespie.

Dodgers, Orioles Win Titles

By United Press International
Baltimore and Los Angeles clinched division titles with victories Tuesday and Pittsburgh moved within a game of joining them.

The Pirates' victory, coupled with a loss by St. Louis, left them in first place in the National League East, a game ahead of the Cardinals with one game remaining on Wednesday night for each team.

Pinch-hitter Andy Etchebarren placed a run-scoring double squarely on the left field foul line with one out in the ninth inning to snap a 6-6 tie, enabling the Orioles to defeat the Detroit Tigers 7-6 and win the American League East title for the fifth time in six years.

The Orioles' triumph, coupled with Milwaukee's 10-inning 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees Tuesday night, gave Baltimore a two-game lead over the Yankees with only one to play.

Tiger reliever John Hiller retired the first Oriole batter in the ninth before Brooks Robinson singled to left. Etchebarren, batting for Elrod Hendricks, came through with his double to score Robinson and give the Orioles their eighth straight win and a 27-6 record since Aug. 29.

The win went to reliever

Grant Jackson, 6-4, who worked one inning in gaining his fourth victory in Baltimore's last five wins. However, reliever Bob Reynolds pitched the ninth for Baltimore and picked up his seventh save.

Steve Garvey drove in one run with his 200th hit of the season igniting the Dodgers to an 8-5 victory over the Houston Astros in a game made meaningless by the Cincinnati Reds' loss earlier Tuesday.

With the victory, the Dodgers assured themselves of the NL West title, their first championship flag since 1966.

As the restless Dodgers watched the Astrodome scoreboard tell of Cincinnati's demise, 7-1 to the Atlanta Braves, they jumped on right-hander James Rodney Richard for two runs in the first inning on Dave Lopes' triple, Garvey's double and a single by Willie Crawford. The hit for Garvey made him the only major leaguer to collect 200 hits and 100 RBIs in one season since Joe Torre did it for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1971.

Crawford's infield grounder in the third inning gave Dodger starter and winner Don Sutton, 19-9, another run and Los Angeles added two more runs in the sixth on run-scoring singles by pinch-hitters Rick Auerback and Lee Lacy.

Bob Robertson hit a two-run pinch homer in the eighth inning to give the Pirates a 6-5 victory

Knights' Lincoln Tilt 'Important'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Who says exhibition hockey games don't count?

"Sure, this game's important ... it's probably our most important exhibition game," noted Omaha Knights' business manager Curt Gordon of Sunday's Knights — Des Moines Capitals game at 7:30 p.m. at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium. "It's our last exhibition game before the regular season opens and nobody has a job nailed down yet."

Atlanta Flames' scout Mickey Keating joined Gordon Tuesday in Lincoln by saying some of the roughest games he's seen have been exhibition matches.

"I think Fred (Omaha coach Fred Creighton) will tell you that all the spots are up for grabs and this last game will help determine which players stick with the club," Keating added.

Gordon noted that when Omaha had perhaps its finest Central Hockey League team during the 1970-71 season under coach Fred Shero, Des Moines trounced the Knights, 6-1, in Des Moines.

Last year, Des Moines tripped the Knights, 7-5, in Lincoln in what Creighton described as one of the team's worst moments.

So Omaha will seek an improved effort this season against a Capital club that won last year's International Hockey League regular season title and Turner Cup playoff crown.

"It should be a good game, since a lot of our players have been in training camp for almost three weeks and theirs (Caps) is just starting," Gordon noted. "The players should be trying hard on both teams to earn their jobs."

Wayne Schaab
Top Omaha Scorer

The Caps are members of the International League — which is not considered a professional league and thus a step below the Central League. The only two minor hockey leagues are the CHL and the American Hockey League on the east coast.

The Knights and Capitals will each have one player who was a member of the other team on this year's roster.

Des Moines has acquired left winger Dave Murphy, a 6-3, 190-pounder from Moncton, New Brunswick. Originally drafted by the Atlanta Flames, Murphy has been a Knight the last two seasons.

The Knights, meanwhile, will have the services of left winger Frank DeMarco, who was the IHL rookie-of-the-year last year and also the league's top goal scorer with 49 tallies.

The two teams will meet in Des Moines on Friday and Saturday before the Lincoln tilt. Des Moines opens its exhibition season Thursday night in the Iowa Capital City against the Phoenix Roadrunners of the World Hockey Association.

Gordon said the CHL has been enhanced this season with the

Archery Hunters Stalk Deer

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Harrison — Archery deer hunting to eastern Nebraskans normally means sitting in a tree stand and waiting for whitetails to stroll underneath for a clean shot.

If that's the type of bowhunting you've experienced, I dare you to try stalking mule deer on the open grasslands of western Nebraska. It's a whole new ball game.

Stalking a deer is a thrill and a challenge, compared with the often freezing wait for one to walk by.

The bluffs, draws, canyons and dry creek beds throughout much of the Pine Ridge area are full of foxy mule deer. The rifle hunter wouldn't claim nor endorse the mule deer as a cagey animal, but the rifle hunter seldom has to see "the whites of their eyes."

An early morning lookout on the prairie meadows will produce deer sightings. Then it's a waiting game, watching the deer until they bed down.

Once the deer are bedded, it's time for the bowhunter's offensive attack. The first requirement is to properly mark the spot where the deer bedded down. Picking out and identifying the landmark is a challenge in itself.

With the location of the deer firmly in mind, it's time to plot the line of attack. Wind direction must be tested to ensure approaching downwind from the deer. If they should happen to catch a human scent, the bowhunter is likely to find his game in the next county.

Getting downwind often means making a lengthy circle in the early stages of the stalk. If there is no wind, it can work to the bowhunter's advantage, at least as far as direction of approach is concerned.

I prefer a good, stiff wind, not only to keep all scent away from the game but also to carry noise away from the animals. Walking on dried grass, through sagebrush or across rocks is seldom as quiet as the hunter would like.

Concealment is the next consideration. Any and all cover or terrain which would hide the hunter during the approach should be used.

Deer, like antelope and most other wary game, will attempt to bed down in a vantage point from which they can see approaching danger. Deer, also pick the shaded sides of gullies, draws, banks or hillsides in order to get out of the sun and the wind.

The stalk, depending upon the terrain, can involve a lot of belly crawling in the sneak approach so long-sleeved shirts and padded knees in the pants certainly make things more comfortable.

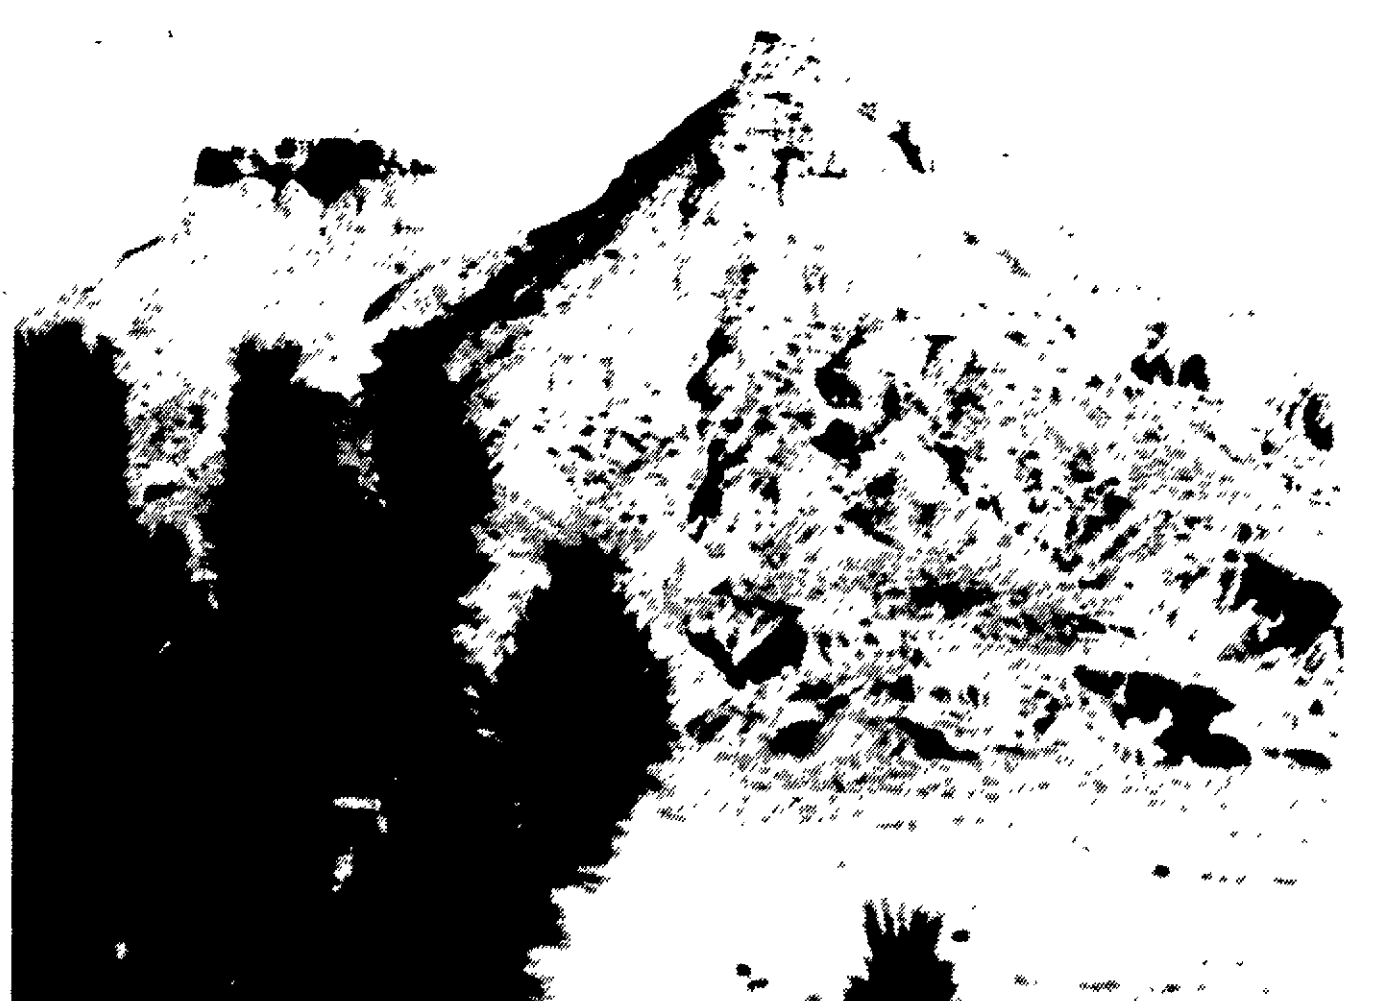

Movement is a dead giveaway to most wild creatures and deer are no exception. Any sudden movement will draw a buck or doe's complete attention. They then have an uncanny knack for staring you down. Remaining frozen in place is tiresome, but it pays off eventually with the deer relaxing once again.

The closer the hunter gets to the game, the more important it is to move slow to remain undetected, to keep extremely alert for any unmarked or incorrectly marked deer in the area, and to keep ready for a quick shot if within range.

Getting into position to shoot with accuracy once the bowhunter reaches his goal is also regularly difficult. It's not entirely out of the question nor is it uncommon to stalk a big buck mule deer on the open range and rolling hills, get within range, then miss the shot when it jumps at the string noise or turns the wrong way or the hunter simply misjudges the distance.

That's what makes bowhunting mule deer an enjoyable challenge.

A high vantage point in early morning often gives the bowhunter the edge in mule deer country when and if he can properly mark the area where the deer bed down for the day. It's then up to the hunter to make the proper stalk.

Morning Briefing

FOOTBALL

The St. Louis Cardinals signed defensive tackle Bob Bell, a three-year pro formerly with the Detroit Lions, to replace the injured Dave Butz, who is out for the season with an injured knee.

The Buffalo Bills placed running back Wayne Mosley on waivers and acquired defensive back Leonard Fairley from Houston.

Kansas State's David Spare tops the country's collegiate punters.

Quarterback Virgil Carter, who sustained a finger fracture against Memphis two weeks ago, apparently will be out for the season, the Chicago Fire announced. The Fire also activated quarterback Bill Cappelman.

Herb Singleton, who started most of the season at quarterback last fall for Oregon, will undergo surgery this week on his right wrist, bringing to an end his collegiate football career.

The Portland Storm of the WFL signed Clancy Oliver, a defensive cornerback from San Diego State and offensive guard Marvin Roberts from Michigan State.

Dallas Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton told police a burglar broke into his home and stole $5,000 worth of property, including his 1972 Super Bowl championship ring.

Jack Concannon, a reserve quarterback for the Green Bay Packers, fractured a cheek bone Monday night in an automobile accident.

Tight end Bob Parrish, recently waived by the New York Jets of the NFL, will be activated by the Jacksonville Sharks of the WFL for Wednesday's game at Memphis.

Pittsburgh running back Franco Harris probably will miss the Steelers' upcoming game against Houston because of a sprained ankle suffered in the Steelers' 17-0 loss to Oakland.

Auburn's defensive end Liston Eddins was named national college lineman of the week by The Associated Press.

Former St. Louis Cardinals' defensive tackle Luke Owens won an out of court settlement in his breach of contract suit against the NFL team.

Jim Garrett, former head coach of the Houston Texans of the WFL, said his suspension was based on a misinterpretation of what he told players prior to the team's move to Shreveport, La.

BASKETBALL

Wilt Chamberlain will announce his retirement next Monday and forego the remaining two years on a three-year, $1.8 million contract as a pro coach.

The Detroit Pistons waived their No. 1 draft choice of 1972, Bob Nash and Larry Hollyfield. The Pistons also announced that coach Ray Scott is assuming full responsibility for player personnel — thus putting him in charge of scouting, drafting and trades.

Billy Cunningham, who two years ago jumped from the NBA's Philadelphia 76ers to the ABA's Carolina Cougars, completed the cycle when he leaped back to the 76ers.

BASEBALL

Joe McDonald replaced retiring Bob Scheffing as general manager of the New York Mets.

The Milwaukee Brewers said Wednesday's game against the New York Yankees has been rescheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Manager Del Crandall and three of his four coaches have been rehired for 1975, the Milwaukee Brewers announced.

Frank Robinson will be named playing manager of the Cleveland Indians Thursday, thereby becoming the first black manager in major league history.

OTHER SPORTS

The father of tennis star Chris Evert confirmed the indefinite postponement of his daughter's marriage to Jimmy Connors, but emphasized that the engagement is not off and the couple is "still very much in love."

World heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman is all set to defend his title against Muhammad Ali on Oct. 30 and his eye is fully healed, an official said.

Shoji Oguma of Japan won the World Boxing Council flyweight championship from Betulio Gonzalez Tuesday night on a split decision.

GI Volleyballers Hit Lincoln High

Grand Island — Senior Theresa Dolezal scored 11 points for Lincoln High, but the Links still dropped a 16-14 and 15-11 girls volleyball match here Tuesday night to Grand Island.

The Links, 4-1, travel to Millard on Thursday. The LHS reserves defeated Grand Island, 15-9 and 15-1.

Soviets Defeat Team Canada, 3-2

Moscow (UPI) — The Howe family, Gordie and Mark, each scored a goal Tuesday night, but Team Canada couldn't stop an aggressive Russian squad that posted a 3-2 victory to take the lead in their eight-game series.

Alexander Maltsev scored twice for Russia as the Canadiens played catchup hockey after the Soviets scored the opening goal with 5:34 gone in the opening period.

Each team had one victory and played two ties during the first four games in Canada.

The Soviets had a faster, rougher and more fluid game going from the start. Team Canada only really came to life in the third period when it showed some of the hard driving form that might still enable them to win the series as they did two years ago.

Gordie Howe tied the game at 1-1 just 15 seconds into the second period with an assist from his son Mark and Ralph Backstrom, but Maltsev cracked the Canadiens' defense again in the middle session to put Russia in front, 2-1.

Alexander Gusev gave Russia the deciding goal when he batted in a rebound off goalie Gerry Cheevers' pads in the third period.

In the final 10 minutes, the Canadians pulled out all stops and started to outpace and outplay the Russians. This paid off at 18:10 with a goal by Mark Howe on an assist from Paul Shmur.

In the final minute, Team Canada pulled Cheevers off the ice and threw in another forward for an all out assault, but could not get through Russian defense.

First Period—1. Russia, Maltsev (Vikunov, Anisim) 5:34. Penalties—Maltsev, Canada, 2:22. Ley, Canada, 6:59. Petrov, Russia, 6:59. Second Period—2. Canada, G. Howe (Mark, Howe) 0:15. 3. Compiled from News Wires. Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer admits he expects to win the Wake Forest game easily, although he says, "I'd really rather not score 42 points in the first quarter like we did against Utah State, last weekend."

Switzer also admits that he is looking on to Oct. 12 when the Sooners meet Texas, "We're going to work this week on Texas," he said. "Of course we will work on Wake Forest this week too, as the game nears."

Oklahoma State coach Jim Stanley did some switching in the Cowboy secondary Tuesday in preparation for this Saturday's game with Texas Tech.

Mike Terry will go at strong safety with Bobby Shepard at right cornerback. Darnell Meyers will stay at free safety with Reggie Pierson at the left corner.

Stanley said that freshman Scott Burk will see some action this weekend at quarterback and that Mike Kennedy has moved up to the starting position at left guard.

Crutchmer Discovers New Role

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Clyde "Clutch" Crutchmer brought fast, long-lasting relief to an ailing University of Colorado football team last week.

The result was a 24-21 upset of Wisconsin, and Crutchmer may have found a new role for himself.

With Colorado trailing 21-10 midway through the third quarter, Crutchmer was inserted for starting quarterback David Williams. He wasted no time re-creating the Buffs.

Crutchmer passed 32 yards to wingback Dave Logan, and a face-mask penalty against Wisconsin put Colorado at the Badgers' 31. Fullback Terry Kunz ran three times for nine yards and, on fourth down, Crutchmer sneaked for another firstdown.

Tailback Billy Waddy, who had a superb day with 151 yards rushing on 25 carries, took a pitchout eight yards to the Wisconsin 11. Three plays later, Crutchmer passed to Kunz for a 10-yard scoring play.

The Buffalo defense held, Rod Perry returned the punt 28 yards to the Wisconsin 37, and CU threatened again. Waddy broke off right tackle for 21 yards and later ran for eight more, before sweeping left end for a five-yard scoring run that proved to be the winning TD with 13:55 left in the final period.

"Clyde gave us a shot in the arm," said Coach Bill Mallory of the junior quarterback from Okmulgee, Okla. "He's good at sparking the team and I felt he could help us. I thought Dave Williams was playing well but we just needed that little spark."

The modest Crutchmer disclaimed much credit for the Buff rally. "I think I just went in at the right time," he said. "There was enough time left so there was no need to panic. The team didn't make any mistakes. All I did was turn around and pitch Waddy the ball. He did the rest."

Conteh Beats Ahumada For WBC Fight Crown

WEMBLEY, England (UPI) — Britain's John Conteh outpointed Argentina's Jorge Ahumada at Wembley's Empire Pool Tuesday night to win the vacant World Boxing Council version of the world light-heavyweight championship.

A capacity crowd of 10,500 cheered the referee's decision at the end of the hard fought and close contest.

Ahumada seemed dissatisfied with referee Harry Gibbs' verdict. But his manager Gil Clancy said "We are not contesting the decision."

"It was very close but I'm satisfied with Jorge's performance," Clancy said. Gibbs' scoring was Conteh 147 points, Ahumada 142.

It was not until the final four rounds that Conteh appeared to be wearing the Argentinian down.

In the 14th round, Ahumada, scenting defeat, tried to take the fight to Conteh. But the Britain jabbed him off and moved out of distance.

In the 15th round Ahumada, with his left eye closing fast, still came forward bravely but his punches were often off target.

Conteh jabbed with the left and then clinched and cracked home to the body. He followed it with a series of rights and lefts as he pushed Ahumada around the ropes.

The referee pulled him back as the heads went in.

Conteh forced Ahumada to the ropes once more and when the bell sounded the crowd erupted.

It was the first time in 25 years that a Briton has held the world light-heavyweight title.

Ahumada weighed in at 174 1/4 pounds to Conteh's 174.

Mizzou Faces Big Test

No doubt there will be all kinds of comparisons between Nebraska and Missouri next week, using the Wisconsin Badgers as the yardstick.

The Huskers, who lost at Wisconsin two weeks ago, will take on the Tigers a week from Saturday in Memorial Stadium to open the Big Eight Conference football season. In the meantime, Missouri plays at Wisconsin this Saturday.

Obviously, comparisons can't really be made because of the injury to Dave Humm in the first quarter of the NU loss to the Badgers and we don't know if a similar situation might develop Saturday at Madison.

One thing is certain, Missouri is coming off a big 9-0 victory over Arizona State last week in the rain at Columbia. It was the first shutout of ASU over a span of 97 games dating back to the second game of the 1965 season.

"If the field had been dry, we still would have gotten the hell beat out of us," remarked Sun Devils coach Frank Kush. "We just didn't do a good job."

Missouri's defense, which was supposed to be the Tigers' strength in pre-season talk, finally put it all together after showing some gaps against Mississippi and Baylor.

On the other hand, Wisconsin last week fell to Colorado, a team which had been humiliated at Louisiana State and Michigan. The Badgers will have extra incentive to get back on the winning path before returning to the Big Ten wars at Ohio State Oct. 12 and Michigan the following week.

Joe Thomas In the Middle

What can Joe Thomas, the new head football coach of the Baltimore Colts say and still keep his job as general manager of the team?

Joe, who has had no pro coaching experience except brief stints as an assistant back in the 1950s, was given the job by team owner Robert Irsay after Irsay fired Howard Schnellenberger on the spot Sunday within an hour after an argument during half-time of the game against Philadelphia.

Thomas' forte is selecting personnel to build winning teams — not coaching them. He says he's going to delegate 95 per cent of the coaching to Schnellenberger's leftover assistants.

Irsay reminds me of Charlie Finley of baseball's Oakland A's, who also likes to fire coaches and managers. But, at least, Finley knows a little bit about baseball. When you own the team, though, I guess you can do anything you want — even though your coach might be playing the right people.

Perhaps the National Football League should set up a committee to screen potential franchise buyers, or at least to institute rules that would keep owners off the sidelines and out of dressing rooms during games. Emotionalism shouldn't enter in to such decisions as firing a coach during a losing effort.

Quarterback Marty Domres, the man Irsay wanted taken out of the game, said: "It's ridiculous. Schnellenberger was a good coach. Nobody can turn this team around because we have to play together before we can win ball games. Irsay is only a sideline owner who doesn't know anything about football."

Thomas, incidentally, becomes the fourth head coach of the Colts since Irsay purchased the franchise in the summer of 1972. During this span, the Colts have lost 22 of 31 games.

College Football Notes

Kansas coach Don Fambrough says Texas A & M is "the toughest team we've played this year — they might be the most physical team we'll play all year."

Aggie coaches, who'll bring their team to Lawrence Saturday, say almost the same thing: "Kansas is a big, strong, quick and experienced defense and a rapidly improving offense — we'll have to play outstanding football to stay with them."

Wisconsin lost defensive end Mike Vesperman with a knee injury at Colorado and he'll miss the next three or four weeks. . . Ohio State has lost safety Rich Parsons with a fractured bone in his forearm. He'll be replaced by Len Willis, the junior college transfer from Nebraska Southern. Willis, a speedster, returned a kickoff 97 yards for a touchdown against Oregon State.

Sonny Collins of Kentucky suffered a knee injury in mid-week last week and couldn't bend or extend it. He received two acupuncture treatments, including one just two hours before Saturday's game. Then he went out and rushed for 160 yards against Indiana. Collins was the Southeastern Conference's leading runner last season.

UCLA's Dave Cargo cracked a fibula making a tackle on a kickoff against Michigan State, but didn't realize it until the game was over. He made three more tackles on kickoffs after the break. He'll be in a cast at least two weeks.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return of branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars, are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

Ex-'House Guest' Aids Onofrio At MU

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Mark Miller grew up in a house that was once owned by Missouri Coach Al Onofrio in Tempe, Ariz. And now the 21-year-old senior is playing slotback for Onofrio at Missouri.

When Onofrio left Arizona State as an assistant coach to join Dan Devine at Missouri, his house was purchased by Miller's parents.

"It was sort of a coaches' neighborhood," says Miller. "Devine had lived next door and Chuck Fairbanks lived right down the street. I hung around with his kid a lot."

Miller, however, was not offered a scholarship at Arizona State and instead enrolled at Mesa (Ariz.) Community College. After graduation from the junior college, he jumped at the opportunity to go to the University of Missouri.

Mark Miller
Tiger Starter

"When I was a kid, I always wanted to go to Arizona State," says Miller. "But I didn't even receive a letter from them."

Big 8 Award To MU's Gillick

Kansas City (AP) — Tony Gillick of Missouri was a quarterback a year ago, but apparently has found his place in college football as a safety.

Gillick, in fact, has in the Tigers' first three games emerged as Missouri's new John Moseley, the elusive punt and kickoff returner of last season.

A senior, Gillick, for the second consecutive week, had a big hand in Missouri's victory, a 9-0 decision Saturday over the seventh-ranked Arizona State.

As a result, Gillick was named unanimously Tuesday as the Big Eight Conference defensive player of the week.

Gillick returned a punt 27 yards, sending the Tigers on their way to a field goal that put the game out of Arizona State's reach.

He also intercepted two passes, the second with a minute remaining in the game and returned it 21 yards.

He made five tackles, the most in the secondary.

It was the first time Arizona State had been blanked in 98 games.

A week earlier, Gillick returned a punt 53 yards for a touchdown that helped the Tigers beat Baylor 28-21.

Told about Gillick's selection, Missouri coach Al Onofrio said: "I'm real pleased. He contributed a great deal to this victory. Tony has really played good defense."

The other defensive players nominated were Randy Hughes of Oklahoma, Roy Shine of Kansas State, Brad Storm of Iowa State, Bob Nelson and Tom Pate of Nebraska, Phillip Dokes of Oklahoma State, Steve Taylor of Kansas and Stan Koleski of Colorado.

Briton Bugner Stops Garcia

Wembley, England (UPI) — Britain's European heavyweight champion Joe Bugner stopped Venezuela's Jose Luis Garcia in 1:48 of the second round Tuesday night at Wembley's Empire Pool.

Bugner crowded on the pressure during the opening round, catching Garcia with some powerful right hand punches to the body.

Garcia was in trouble from the beginning of the second round. He was warned twice by referee Sid Nathan for using his head.

Then Bugner cracked home a short right followed by a left swing to the head and Garcia was out for the count.

Football Injuries Hit Gal Gridders

Susan Spencer, 16, of Murray required several stitches in her forehead, while Naomi Estell, 17, of Plattsburgh had some teeth knocked out and suffered a badly cut tongue.

Both were taken to Nebraska Methodist Hospital in Omaha for treatment.

Charles Caverzagie, a Plattsburgh teacher, said the two girls were playing on the same team during a fund-raising event when they ran into each other.

Duck Classes Slated Friday

Two duck identification classes have been scheduled for Friday and Oct. 9 at the State Game Commission headquarters.

Commission biologists Jack Sinn and Dan Rochford will conduct the 7:30 p.m. programs, which will include slides, a film and a question and answer period.

The commission said the ability to identify ducks is important to hunters, especially since adoption of point system bag limits.

In eastern Nebraska, the duck season will open Oct. 21 and run through Dec. 8. In the western part of the state, there will be two seasons, one from Saturday through Nov. 17 and the other from Dec. 14 through Jan. 3.

Miller, moved from wide receiver to slotback this season, played an inspired game against Arizona State last Saturday, a 9-0 victory for Missouri. Almost single-handedly, he accounted for Missouri's lone touchdown.

Miller recovered a fumble by linebacker Bob Breunig after a pass interception at the Sun Devils' 36 late in the first quarter. Then he ran 18 yards on a reverse sweep and caught the 18-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ray Smith.

"That's what I like to do," says Miller. "Catching the ball is how I can help the team."

Onofrio certainly is happy with Miller's play.

"Mark has played well all year," says the coach. "He plays with a great deal of intensity. He's contributed a heckuva lot to our offense and been a real important part of it."

Missouri has an equally difficult assignment this Saturday, visiting Wisconsin in Madison. The Badgers, upset conquerors of Nebraska, were in turn upset themselves last week at Colorado, 24-21.

Other games involving Big Eight teams send Wake Forest to Oklahoma, Oklahoma State to Texas Tech, Texas A&M to Kansas, Kansas State to Mississippi State, Colorado to Air Force, Minnesota to Nebraska and New Mexico to Iowa State.

Williams Field To Be Removed?

Ames, Iowa (UPI) — An Iowa State University official said Tuesday Clyde Williams Field probably will be torn down after the school's new football stadium is ready next year.

John Pace, director of space and scheduling, said razing the stadium would provide open recreation space for ISU students. He said the track would be retained for varsity sports and joggers.

Plans for razing Clyde Williams Field are still in the preliminary stage, Pace said, and won't be finalized for another year. Cost of the work is estimated at $90,000.

Pace said the west side of the stadium is structurally poor and the school couldn't afford to bring it up to a safe condition in the future.

"From this office's point of view, the entire structure should be razed," he said.

Robinson Sighting Short

By The Associated Press

Jerome Robinson, 27, of Brandon, contends the hardest part of the rodeo season is from mid-September until the National Finals Rodeo early in December.

"A berth at the Finals is already cinched," he said, "and I know it is impossible for me to catch the leader if I won first everytime out from now until the end of the year."

"The only way I can keep going this time of the year...is to set little goals of short range," he said.

Being a bull rider has been one of his long-range goals.

"I was five years old when I told my grandmother I wanted to be a bull rider," he said.

From Little Britches, junior and high school rodeos he went on to college competition at Colorado State. He enrolled there because "CSU was a member of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association and Nebraska wasn't."

He said, "By the time I started college I thought I had at least the basics." But when he got his full membership card in the Rodeo Cowboys Association as a sophomore, he said, "I found out I didn't know anything."

A session in a bull riding school taught him the proper equipment, its use, preparation for the ride and how to get on a bull in the chute.

After crawling on at least one bull a week since 1965, the 5-10, 140 pound Robinson has become one of the better bull riders of the early 70s.

He graduated from CSU in 1970 with a degree in vocational agriculture and a background in chemistry and history. Then he decided to "rodeo a little" and made 128 in one season.

Robinson finished among the nation's top 15 bull riders his first season out and his name has been on that list each year since.

Last year fellow competitors recognized his bull riding capabilities and his dedication to rodeo by electing him their representative on the Association's board of directors.

Three Held For Conner Attack

Scottsbluff (UPI) — Police Tuesday had three teenagers in custody in connection with the assault last Friday night upon William Conner, Scottsbluff High School activities director.

Conner remained hospitalized with a skull fracture and broken wrist. Attendants said his condition was stable.

He was assaulted as he left the Scottsbluff-Gering High School football game.

Police said the three boys being held were 14, 16 and 17 years of age. The two younger boys were released to their parents for later appearances in juvenile court.

The 17-year-old, who turned himself in, was being held in Scotts Bluff County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Scottsbluff police chief James Eckert said the incident had nothing to do with the football rivalry. He said the 14-year-old was in school but the other two had dropped out.

Doctor Okays Contact Sports For Epileptics

Norfolk (UPI) — Youngsters with properly controlled epilepsy should be permitted to play contact sports, including football, according to Dr. James H. Dunlap of Norfolk, president of the Nebraska Medical Association.

This reversal of a previous belief is based on theory rather than scientific knowledge, Dunlap said.

In the past, he explained, the theory was that it was considered logical that anyone with seizures should not subject himself to repetitive head trauma.

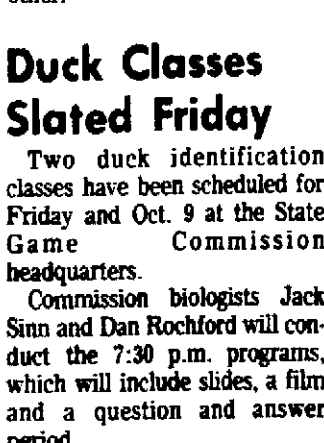

"Previously, there was no statistical proof that repetitive physical contact, even of the head as in football, caused a greater frequency of seizures in the epileptic than might occur when the same patient was asleep," Dunlap said.

"In fact, in many patients, seizures occur more often with sleep."

He acknowledged that opinion was still divided but said there is "ample evidence" that patients will not be affected adversely by indulging in any sport, if normal safeguards for sports participation are followed, including adequate head protection.

High Moisture Milo Quality Feed

Harvesting and feeding high moisture milo may be the answer for cattle feeders faced with expensive grain and roughage and uncertain milo harvesting conditions.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension beef specialist Paul Guyer suggested that cattle feeders should be able to cut costs and obtain greater feed efficiency this winter using high moisture milo.

Guyer cited research at Kansas State University where feeding yearling steers milo harvested at about 25% moisture produced superior feed efficiency and average daily gains over field-dried milo.

"Feeding high moisture grain will normally improve feed efficiency by 10 to 15% over dry milo," Guyer pointed out. "Also, harvesting high moisture milo offers these additional advantages:

- reduces chances of weather damage;
- eliminates need for drying; and —permits earlier field work or grazing."

The major disadvantage of high moisture storage is that the milo is limited to livestock feeding and cannot be marketed as cash grain, Guyer told.

The KSU researchers compared different methods of storing high moisture and dry milo. After ensiling the high moisture grain for at least three weeks, it was fed in identical rations to 825-pound steers.

The three methods of storing high moisture milo were: milo ensiled whole in an air-tight silo; or, treated with a chemical grain preservative and stored whole in a metal grain bin; or rolled and ensiled in an upright concrete stave silo.

The other storage methods used in the feeding trials were reconstituted dry milo rolled and stored in concrete stave silos, or dry milo stored whole in a metal grain bin.

The most efficient cattle were those fed high moisture milo stored in either an air-tight upright silo or chemically preserved in a metal grain bin, Guyer said.

Farmers Urged To Watch Grain's Moisture Content

Agronomists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been getting reports from across eastern Nebraska of grain being harvested at low moisture content, according to Dr. Wally Moline, Extension agronomist.

Lack of moisture in September apparently has caused the crops to dry faster than normal, he said.

This means that farmers should keep close watch on their corn, milo and soybeans and be ready to harvest at any time, he said.

Moisture levels reported included corn at 20%, soybeans at 8%, and milo at 14%, he said.

The drier the crop, the larger the field losses, Moline pointed out.

Also, high winds could cause severe field losses in dry crops, he said.

There were two optimistic notes about the crop.

Dr. M.G. Boosalis, chairman of the Plant Pathology Department, said that stalk rot has not developed to the extent feared earlier. This is probably because of the cool, dry weather, he said.

Robert Roselle, Extension entomologist, said that the fall insect survey has not been completed, but information gathered to date shows no evidence of severe European corn borer damage.

Corn borers could contribute to higher field losses in individual fields in case of high winds, but the entomologists have no reason for alarm about the general corn crop at this time, he said.

Corn borers weaken the stalk which holds a corn ear to the stalk, causing it to fall to the ground easily, he added.

Corn, Soybean Growth Halted By Early Frost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that early frosts have ended further growth of corn and soybeans in much of the Midwest, where crops were delayed by wet weather last spring and hit by drought during the summer.

Officials said in a weekly weather report that the frosts occurred on the nights of Sept. 21 and 22. However, the report did not estimate crop losses or indicate how yields might be affected.

The department's next crop production estimates are due Oct. 10, based on indications as of the first of the month.

The report said corn growth was stopped in Iowa by frost in the northern two-thirds of the state. Over-all, it said, Iowa corn was 68% mature.

Former Omaha Councilman Files For Bankruptcy

Omaha (UPI) — Former City Councilman John Rittums Tuesday filed petitions under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act listing secured debts of $3.9 million and unsecured debts of $140,000.

The petitions, filed on behalf of Rittums, his wife Ingeborga and Rittums Realty, Inc., said Rittums was unable to pay his debts as they matured.

The former councilman is to offer a plan for payment of the debts with the judge of the bankruptcy court.

Chapter 11 provides an arrangement under which the debts may be paid off while the really firm continues to operate under jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court, a court spokesman said.

4 Jets To Be Sold

Bahrain (AP) — Gulf Air, airlines of the major Persian Gulf emirates, has agreed to purchase four Lockheed Tristar jets for about $25 million each, airline sources said.

Teen Girl Released From Hall Co. Jail

Grand Island (AP) — A Hall County District Court Judge has ruled that the facilities for female prisoners at the Hall County Jail are "totally inadequate."

Judge Donald Weaver made his comments in conjunction with a ruling on a writ of habeas corpus for a Grand Island teenager.

Weaver ruled in favor of Karrie Kappka, 17, whose attorneys had filed the writ against Hall County Sheriff C. F. Headley.

The Kappka girl was arrested Sept. 24 on a juvenile court order. She was charged with juvenile delinquency.

Defense attorneys contended that Miss Kappka was held in the county jail for seven days after her arrest with no court hearing. The defense alleged that during the time Miss Kappka was confined, that she had no dining, shower, or exercising facilities, and that she had no privacy from male inmates in the jail.

The defense further contended that Miss Kappka was subjected to cruel and unusual punishment as a result of jail conditions.

Judge Weaver agreed with the defense, ruling that Miss Kappka suffered indignities as a result of the facilities. The judge ordered her released from custody, and that costs be taxed to the county.

Independent gubernatorial candidate Ernest Chambers Tuesday urged Lincoln Rotarians to "stop reading patriotic nonsense" long enough to "look at the quality of life" of some Americans.

"There are multiple societies in this country," he said, and they include poor and hungry people who are suffering.

"If you believe in Christianity," Chambers told a Rotary Club luncheon, then you should favor redistribution of the wealth in America.

Too much power rests with large corporations, the Omaha state senator declared.

"Stronger Than States"

"They are stronger than state governments," he said. "They take over regulatory agencies."

Nebraska farmers, in particular, are "duped by corporate interests" who make the profits while farmers till the soil, Chambers said.

Farmers and others who may be afflicted with economic woes should realize that "their problems are not caused by the black militant in the ghetto," he said. Corporate interests are more likely to blame, he said.

Chambers said he has "no sympathy whatsoever for the money changers" who are concerned by Nebraska's 9% usury limit.

"I will not vote to increase interest rates in Nebraska," he said.

Disclose Ownership

Chambers said he would like to see legislation requiring landowners to disclose ownership of land in Nebraska and the use to which it is being put.

That disclosure would help determine what non-agricultural corporations are using farming as a tax dodge, he said.

Chambers said he realized the Rotary Club is "a conservative, ultra-patriotic group," but he wanted to speak directly, even though "my aim is not to alienate you."

Politicians generally are "pussy-footers," he said.

"If you stretched a piano keyboard all the way from New York to California and had all the politicians in the country run over it, they wouldn't strike one note."

Answering questions, Chambers said he opposes the 1974 state school aid law because he has not been convinced that it improves the quality of education.

Against Sales Tax

Besides, he noted, it would increase the state sales tax rate. Chambers opposes the sales tax altogether.

Chambers said the aged Penitentiary now in use should be closed down as soon as possible and replaced with "a new facility to equip people to live in this society."

While he favors amnesty for all who fled the U.S. to evade the war in Vietnam ("your future ran"), he also favors expanded benefits for veterans who, he said, have not received adequate assistance.

Chambers called former President Nixon "an archgangster," and criticized President Ford's action pardoning Nixon.

"If he is let free, all the jails should be emptied," he said.

If elected governor, Chambers said, he would "use the office to solve problems . . . and respond to needs."

Independent Support

Chambers said he anticipates support from "a large number of Independents," and from "some disenchanted Republicans (cq) and Demagogues (cq) as well."

While he is in the race to win, Chambers said, his candidacy will hurt Mickey Mouse's chances the most.

Nebraskans who might have expressed protest against the Democratic and Republican gubernatorial nominees by writing in Mickey's name can now vote for him, Chambers explained.

Curtis Blasts Exon's 'Lack Of Proposals'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis, a Republican, blasted Democratic Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday for Exon's "lack of concrete proposals for solving the crisis in the livestock market."

Curtis also said he is dismayed, "particularly in view of his (Exon's) criticism of proposals by members of the Nebraska congressional delegation for bringing about a real solution to the problem."

Curtis said a statement by Exon "indicates the governor doesn't have any concrete proposals, nor does he want to deal effectively and squarely with the sagging livestock market."

"It indicates to me that the governor is again using an issue crucial to thousands of Nebraskans for campaign 'politicizing.' He talks a good game, but doesn't come through in the end," Curtis said.

Curtis took specific issue with Exon's remarks following meetings Monday with U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe and Norm Ross, assistant director of the President's Domestic Council.

Asked about a proposal by Curtis and fellow Nebraska Sen. Roman Hruska, that food stamps be color-coded to require a portion of the stamps be used only for the purchase of beef pork and poultry, Exon said, "It was an unfair proposal."

Exon said he did not think livestock producers would like the idea of restricting the diets of the poor by requiring them to buy meat "at prices we feel are too high."

According to Curtis, the color-coded food stamps were suggested in a letter he sent to President Gerald Ford last week.

Curtis said the proposal would have a two-fold benefit, assuring the nutritious food for food stamp recipients, while helping the sagging livestock market.

Tuesday, Curtis introduced a bill to require that 15% of the food stamps issued be used for the purchase of meat products.

"Governor Exon's opposition to this proposal indicates he doesn't know the first thing about the food stamp program, and that he doesn't support real efforts to help the livestock industry," Curtis said.

Curtis pointed out that during fiscal 1974, food stamps in the amount of $5 billion are expected to be issued, and that had his proposed bill been in effect, it would have meant that $750 million in meat and poultry would have been consumed by food stamp recipients.

Dyas Raps Ford's Farm Program

Fairbury — Democratic Congressional candidate Hess Dyas issued a sharp criticism of the Ford administration and its agriculture program Tuesday, noting administration reservations on investigating meat price-fixing at a time when meat prices took another downturn.

Dyas made his statement after leaving Fairbury on his 734-mile walk across Nebraska's First Congressional District.

"During this walk across the district, I've met hundreds of farmers," Dyas said. "Many of them are fed up with the administration's version of a farm program."

"Now, news reports have confirmed what farmers have been feeling . . . another downturn in prices farmers receive for Nebraska's staple crops."

Dyas referred to a Lincoln Star story Tuesday which indicated the prices of raw farm products dropped 2% from Aug. 15 to Sept. 15. While some products went up in price, Nebraska's major crops — cattle, hogs, soybeans and corn — went down.

"This is the single 'contribution' the administration and its supporters, like Charles Thone, can claim in a fight against inflation," Dyas said. "They've further depressed the most depressed sector of the economy — agriculture."

"It's time we had strong vocal leadership back in Washington. Not just an apologist who only manages to come up with criticism of his own administration's farm program."

The fight against inflation should take place on battlegrounds other than the economic survival of the family farmer, Dyas said.

"It should take place in Congress's own spending, in the bureaucracy and military budget, in tax reform and in excessive profits," he said.

Cash Funds' Safety Eyed

By ROBERT METZ
New York — Just how safe are those cash funds that invest in a wide variety of short-term money market instruments? The answer to that question is, it depends.

While some money market funds invest in short-term government securities such as Treasury Bills and the obligations of various government agencies, others seek the higher yields available through various forms of bank paper.

In a period of financial crisis it is possible that vast numbers of investors in these cash funds would redeem overnight. Most of the funds stress their liquidity — the fact that they can sell the underlying securities quickly.

Some Day
At least half of the 21 money funds in existence today offer "telephone redemption." By that they mean that they will answer a call for cash for an investor by wiring the money that very day.

But would these funds be able to respond that quickly if calls were jamming the switchboards? This contingency gives some observers pause. While most securities held by the cash funds are easy to sell especially in wholesale lots in today's market — they might not be so easy to dispose of in a crisis.

One major fund, which provides the highest yields available through this type of investment, reportedly has put as much as 90% of its assets into the so-called documented discount notes, also called letters of credit.

In this form of money market instrument, a bank guarantees a customer's note thus making it possible for the customer to enter the money market with marketable paper. That is, the money to be raised can be obtained from such organizations as the money market funds, insurance companies and other financial institutions because the bank guarantees that if the market for the securities dries up, the bank will nevertheless pay off at maturity.

Concern Seen
There has been more than passing concern over the proliferation of the documented discount note. Critics of the banks note that these instruments constitute calls on the banks' assets and they must be mentioned in bank financial statements. They worry that they do not get sufficient prominence to alert investors as to how much of the banks' assets are committed.

There is some indication that some of the funds are growing concerned about the liquidity of the banking system and investing to a larger degree in Treasury Bills and other government paper.

For example, Dreyfus Liquid Assets reportedly has a substantial part of its assets in governments of one sort or another. Its yield at present is 11.3%.

More cautious still is Capital Preservation Fund. This small fund in Palo Alto, Calif., is 100% of its assets in short-term government issues.

In contrast to the fund that has 90% of its assets in documented discount notes and pays 12% at present, Capital Preservation pays only 9%.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The Nebraska Medical Association reports these ailments originate from a variety of causes ranging from emotional to allergic responses to the environment.
Today, physicians are able to treat asthma easily and with little inconvenience to the patient. During the past 20 years, hormone treatment of asthma, and the use of cortisone-like preparations have given patients valuable relief. In addition, various medications which provide relief for asthma sufferers when used under the strict supervision of a physician.

The Nebraska Medical Association says most asthma and hay fever tends to become more severe and complicated, the longer it persists. Your family physician can prescribe treatment and recommend the necessary diet habits, and other remedies for relief of hay fever and asthma.
The Nebraska Medical Association recommends that individuals consult their physician for further information about asthma and other bronchial ailments.

Stock Market Slows Down Latest Slide

New York (AP) — The stock market, given an extra half-hour to work with, could not stop its most recent slide Tuesday but did manage to slow it down.
The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 3.05 to 604.82, recovering most of an early 14-point loss that pushed it below the 600 level for a while.

Trading was fitful and fairly active on the first day of a six-hour operating schedule at the major exchanges, with the close pushed back from 3:30 to 4 p.m. (EDT) in an effort to stimulate business for the securities industry.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 16.89 million shares, against 15 million on Monday.
Losers surpassed gainers 786 to 598 among the 1,812 issues traded on the Big Board.

There was little economic news to push the market very hard in either direction during the day, and Wall Streeters directed most of their attention to the Dow's at least temporarily successful efforts to stay above 600.

The widely watched average first closed below 800 this year on July 2 and finished below the 700 mark for the first time since 1970 on Aug. 23.

The average slipped quickly past 600 early in Tuesday's trading, but in so doing it evidently attracted some cautious bargain hunting.
Shortly after noon it was back above 600, then it spent the rest of the day swinging back and forth uncertainly on that precarious perch.

Some of the more optimistic market observers said it appeared the market was "groping for some sort of a bottom," in the words of one.

They also acknowledged, however, that its efforts to right itself were taking place amid widespread concern over the potential effects of continuing inflation and the world oil situation on the economies of the United States and many other countries.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 55.48, down .19.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

TV Set Of Future May Hang On Wall

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Japanese are racing the market again to be first with a flat screen TV set. Michael Mealey is Tokyo bureau chief for McGraw-Hill World News.)

By MICHAEL MEALEY
Tokyo — Today's color television set may soon wind up on the antique shelf, replaced by 40-inch color models that simply hang on the wall.

Researchers at two of Japan's leading electronics firms already have built prototypes of such sets. If their development projects prove successful, they say color sets with giant screens will be hitting the market around 1980. Moreover, the sets would weigh only 30 pounds, and be two to three inches thick. The current Sony and Hitachi laboratory versions are on a smaller scale, and Sony engineers estimate that picture quality must be improved by 100-fold before commercial versions can be marketed.

At Hitachi developers estimate that research to improve quality will probably take another five years. Then if the set is feasible, another two years will be required to get the model off production lines.

The flat screen set is called a gas discharge panel. In simple terms, it involves distribution of phosphorous dots across the face of the screen. The dots are the primary colors — red, blue and green. Ultraviolet rays generated from the mechanics of the set excite the phosphorous dots to produce a color picture.

In both the Sony and Hitachi models, lines across the screen are clearly visible, and small writing and other detailed images are difficult to discern. Poor brightness qualities are blamed for the inferior picture, and it is in this area that researchers are concentrating their efforts to bring improvement.

Masakazu Fukushima, senior researcher at Hitachi general research laboratory points out that the efficiency of a fluorescent lamp is 20 to 30 times greater per watt of power input than commercial color sets now on the market. Because the basic concept of the gas discharge color television set is not that far removed from the fluorescent lamp, engineers hope that brightness qualities for the television can, indeed, be improved.

Yoshitomi Amano at Sony says that if a commercial set is developed, it could well involve circuitry simple enough to reduce production costs, in addition to offering consumers a flat, light set. Hitachi's Fukushima questions whether production would be cheaper. Gas discharge sets with screen smaller than 30 inches would be too expensive to compete against the sets of today, he feels.

Fukushima will not make a guess whether or not research will be enough to permit the breakthroughs needed to sufficiently improve the quality of the prototypes now in the lab. Sony engineers are more optimistic.

I SURE WISH HE COULD LEARN TO THINK OF ME AS ONE OF THE FAMILY---

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Wednesday

Scorpio I would enjoy knowing Katharine Hepburn. Scorpio who was familiar with his horoscope and kept it mounted on a chessboard in the White House. Theodore Roosevelt. The Scorpio woman is most likely to be intimidating. The Scorpio man plays the game rough-and-ready and is capable of being a gracious winner — and a very poor loser.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Quick action affects areas associated with legalities, partnerships, long-range commitments, including marriage. You find who is to stay, what must go and what you can do about it. In effect, a part of emotional rug is pulled from under you. But you do land on your feet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). What you see may be a surface indication. Older individual may want to extract pound of flesh. Be on guard against Trojan horses. Do what must be done and don't expect something for nothing. Capricorn, Cancer could be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20). Some friends, hopes and wishes are subject to sudden changes, revisions. You finish rather than begin — what was a burden is removed. But you draw to you fiery individuals who have complaints and demand response.

CANCER (June 21-July 22). You learn costs. You also know what to do about situation which has been blocking progress. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure prominently. Be independent. Refuse to be bogged down by tradition. Instead, begin creating your own traditions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You understand motives and perceive methods. But conditions are not right for complete break, revision or radical change. Patience is your ally — and so is a grown-up attitude. Conserve energies. Prepare for future with creative savings program.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Diversity. Highlight versatile approach to questions. Gemini, Sagittarius are in picture. Money and how it got that way that is likely to occupy you. Answers are obtainable if you put forth proper queries.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Creative changes are featured. Some may fear your goals, motives, methods. It is to adhere to style and principles. Ignore those who insist only on dwelling in past. Do some remodeling — tear down for purpose of rebuilding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Basic procedures get a shake-up. You find that acquisitive people ask a number of questions in providing answers, you learn — grow. Gemini, Virgo individuals figure prominently. You are able to piece together parts of a puzzle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Romance, creative pursuits are featured. Young person may appear to make unreasonable demands. Key is to make compromise without abandoning principles. Keep peace on domestic front. Unorthodox associate creates "minor havoc."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Emphasis is on past and how to free yourself. Means don't feel that what went before must continue for an eternity. Become your own person — and start now! A mistake need not be compounded. A loss could be commencing to your ultimate profit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Pull forces together. Emphasize strong points. Experienced individual will give you benefit of doubt. You receive vote of confidence. Show appreciation by money management, promotion, organizing campaign.

Scholz Wins $500

Chrysler Corporation announces a new car warranty with unlimited mileage for one full year.

For the first 12 months of use, any Chrysler Motors Corporation dealer will fix, without charge for parts or labor, any part of our 1975 passenger cars we supply (except tires) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage.

And that's just the beginning.

We're confident that you'll find everything about our new '75's—from engineering and styling to economy—easy to say yes to. And for the clincher, we're backing them up with our new Owner Care Program.

It starts with a new 12 month, unlimited mileage warranty so strong and simple it's bound to generate questions. So, right here and now, we offer some answers.

Q. Unlimited mileage sounds simple enough. But what's the catch?

A. There's no catch. The warranty covers every part we put in the car. And it's good for as many miles as you can drive in 12 full months.

Q. What about labor?

How much will that cost?

A. Nothing. If Chrysler Corporation put that part on your car, it's covered. Parts and labor. And that goes for everything except tires, which are covered separately by their manufacturer.

Q. But there are some expensive things that could just "wear out" if you drive enough miles even though they're not "defective." You know; brake linings, mufflers, shock absorbers.

Do I have to pay for them?

A. No. To a lot of people those might be considered something for you to worry about. But since we want to make your relationship with the car we make as worry-free as possible, we're ready to take on those responsibilities. So, even if they just wear out during the first 12 months of normal use, we'll replace them no matter how many miles you drive.

Q. That's a great "extra." Does it include everything that just wears out?

A. No. We expect you to take care of normal maintenance—the little things like changing filters and wiper blades (unless, of course, they're defective, then they come under the warranty).

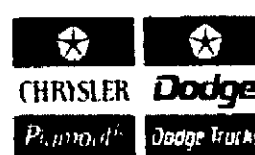

Q. The only way you could top all that is throw in a free loaner. Uh...do you?

A. Sure. If you make an appointment for warranty repairs in advance, and the job cannot be completed from morning until evening of the same working day, participating dealers will supply you with a loaner. Free.

Q. Is there anything else I should know?

A. Replacing certain worn out parts, our unlimited mileage warranty and our free loaner program are all just the beginning of a new Owner Care Program, designed to make owning our new cars so worry-free, they'll be irresistible.

See your Chrysler-Plymouth or Dodge dealer. Ask him about his new cars, then ask him about "The Clincher!"

"THE CLINCHER!"

It's going to take better care of the people who buy our cars.

Regents' Separation Of Horticulture, Forestry Questioned

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Saying that teaching programs may be weakened, University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors in the former Horticulture and Forestry Department have questioned the NU Board of Regents' decision to divide the department.

But Duane Acker, vice chancellor of the institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, says the fears are "entirely normal. Anytime there's a reorganization, there are apprehensions and concerns."

"We have had an enduring problem in forestry," and several regents were aware it was "begging for a solution," Acker said.

'First Step'

Establishing separate departments of horticulture and forestry, Acker said, is the "first step" toward that solution.

Walter Bagley, associate professor of horticulture and forestry, said he's "willing, now that it's done, to make it work."

But "It's too bad we couldn't have more open discussion prior to the decision" by the regents, Bagley said, explaining it "wasn't based on a lot of input from the staff."

Bagley, Prof. J. O. Young, who resigned as chairman of the combined department after the regents' decision, and Horticulture and Forestry Prof. Robert B. O'Keefe all said in separate interviews they support Acker's motives.

Acker proposed the division to strengthen the state forester's function, assigned by law to the regents; to accommodate growth expected in funds for forestry service and action programs; and to coordinate the teaching, research, extension and action programs under the state forester, who will also be forestry department chairman.

'Not Disgruntled'

Acker's commitment to the regents to move quickly was "about 20 times better than no decision," Young said. "I'm not disgruntled or peeved about it," he said, adding he resigned as chairman and acting state forester because "I did not want to participate administratively in the restructuring."

"The majority of the department did not want to separate," the vacationing Young said in a telephone interview from Wolcott, Vt. "but the administration did and the administration prevailed."

The staff forwarded through Acker to the regents a resolution supporting strengthening the state forester's position. But O'Keefe, Bagley and Young said a second resolution stated a new department was unnecessary to give the forester more authority and responsibility. They called for realignment within the existing, combined department.

The administration, O'Keefe said, was "looking to the future: Someday we're going to have to form a department of forestry. Why not do it now?"

Young said the departments' teaching functions may be weakened as a result. O'Keefe agreed: "Instead of a semi-strong teaching program," the departments separately will "wind up with two weak teaching programs again." He said he believes research will be largely unaffected.

Bagley said he is concerned because forestry research and teaching "are very closely enmeshed with the Department of Horticulture."

Specifically, he said ornamental horticulture and urban forestry are almost identical courses. "Even with us separated, we should still work closely" on such courses, but he said one department might be weakened at the other's benefit.

Who Grants Degree?

Borderline courses applying either to horticulture or forestry leave doubt in awarding credit to a pre-forestry student, he said. And the regents' consideration of what department will grant forestry students their degrees was "inadequately discussed."

Bagley said the forestry staff and budget are not large enough to implement an effective program separately.

"I have seen no plans for an increased staff," Bagley said.

Further problems might arise as a result of what he called "a lack of digging down to the bottom." For example, Bagley is the only staff member with a joint appointment to each department in teaching and research. "I now work for two bosses," he said. "That may or may not be good."

Acker said he expects the forestry program will be small and "I do not anticipate a professional curriculum."

Hasty Decision?

Bagley said, aside from teaching problems, his "main concern" was that the regents approved the division hastily and routinely, with "no chance for the public to know the pros and cons."

O'Keefe, who attended the Scottsbluff regents meeting, said board members did not, as far as he knows, discuss the matter at their informal, secret meeting before the Saturday public session, when "the actual decision was made 'Boom.'"

O'Keefe said the proposal was discussed earlier in three meetings with foresters, and in one with horticulturists in late July.

But "as horticulturists, we weren't informed" of the decision to go ahead and divide the department "until about three or four days before it was to go to the regents," O'Keefe said.

"Are regents meetings really open enough?" Bagley asked. "More of this type of discussion ought to be open to the public."

Young questioned whether the "regents get their information filtered through the administration rather quickly." He said, "I hope the regents will continue to open their meetings more."

Meanwhile, Vice Chancellor Acker said,

"There will be a time period here of a few months, when a few of the staff will be wondering what the future is" for the two separate departments.

"In terms of the strength of the teaching programs, we're very concerned that they be strong, whether large or small," Acker said.

Young said, "I hope the next step is to arrange some cross-departmental communications."

Possible Saving

If more time had been taken to study interdepartmental needs — for example, merging the natural resources curriculum with the department — that "might've saved one reorganization" later, Bagley said.

The division "solved an immediate problem" for forestry, he said, but will "create problems for horticulture."

Acker said he will invite in a few weeks "representatives of all phases of the horticulture industry, including consumers" to tell him what the horticulture department "should do for Nebraska."

He said he'll solicit advice on undergraduate curriculum, training needs, and desired resource and extension programs for the state.

More input will precede any decision "on the kind of (forestry) department chairman we should seek" and on curriculum. Staff members, he promised, "will be involved in these decisions."

Whitney Confident Court Will Agree

By The Associated Press
State Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell says he is confident the State Supreme Court will rule that a bill which would nearly triple state aid to education must go before the voters in November.

Whitney led the petition drive to force the measure, LB772, onto the ballot.

Whitney and lobbyist S. H. Brauer Jr. also said new data from the State Education

Chilly Air Hangs Over Nebraska

Chilly temperatures covered most of Nebraska early Tuesday, setting a record low mark at Omaha.

The mercury dipped to 27 degrees at Chadron, lowest in the state. Omaha's 29 was the lowest Oct. 1 temperature ever there, two degrees lower than the old record set in 1876.

Sharing Omaha's 29 were Alliance, Sidney and Norfolk.

At Lincoln, the mercury dropped to 32 degrees, just one mark above the record low for the date set in 1886.

A summary of September's weather reveals temperatures in Lincoln averaged 4.7 degrees below normal, ranging from 90 Sept. 26 to 35 on Sept. 3 and 22.

Record low temperatures in Lincoln were set on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th of September. Total precipitation for September in the Capital City was a mere .29 of an inch, 2.63 inches below normal.

Nebraska's forecast calls for a warming trend through Thursday. Highs Wednesday will range from mid-60s in the east to mid-70s in the west. Lows Wednesday night are expected to reach the mid-30s in the west to mid-40s in the east.

Highs Thursday are expected to reach the upper 70s to low 80s across Nebraska.

Dick Gregory Scheduled To Talk At Union Sunday

Black comedian and political activist Dick Gregory will give a speech, open to the public at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Nebraska Union, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Gregory is the first in a series of speakers sponsored by the union's Talks and Topics Committee. Others included David Halberstam, author of "The Best and the Brightest," and feminist and New York Congresswoman Bella Abzug.

Department further demonstrates their contention that the measure is inequitable.

A Lancaster district judge has rejected a suit that would have kept the measure off the referendum ballot. Proponents of the suit said they would appeal to the higher court.

"I'm certain that the Supreme Court will rule the same way," he said. "I think the (lower) court made the right decision. Schools are not a state institution, as such."

The lower court said LB772 was not an appropriations measure and was eligible for a referendum vote because Whitney and his supporters obtained enough petition signatures to earn the repeal effort.

The legislation would increase state school aid over the next two years from $55 million to more than $155 million. It would also shift the burden of costs away from the property tax, and onto the state sales and income taxes.

Whitney also said that he doubted a poll, conducted for a Lincoln newspaper, which showed 58% of those surveyed favored increased state aid to education.

"I'm going to win no matter what the poll says," Whitney said. "My reaction to it is that the people don't understand the new law."

Whitney and Brauer said a computer printout taken Friday from the Education Department showed some schools would get about 20% of their operational costs from the state under the law, while others would get more than 80%.

"These people don't realize it creates greater inequality in education," Whitney said.

Backers of the legislation have argued it is designed to create equal educational opportunities.

Whitney said 258 of the state's 1,200-old school districts would have to raise local educational spending 27%, based on their present property tax mill levies to qualify for state aid.

Suzuki Method Musicians Hold Audience Spellbound

By JOEL THORSON

Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Seward — Eight tiny violinists and a small pianist held an audience of more than 200 college students and schoolchildren spellbound here Tuesday afternoon with a performance ranging from "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" to Vivaldi and Bartok.

The ninth violin-playing member had to be excused. Only five years old, she was a little tired as a result of an exhausting travel schedule. She was taking a nap.

The afternoon workshop and an evening concert were given by Japan's touring Suzuki Talent Education ensemble to demonstrate the world-famous Suzuki method of musical instruction, by which children are taught to play the violin and other instruments at a very early age.

To a large degree, he said the problem is on the streets of the worthy of a college music student. Ten-year-old Kaori Maruyama's piano performance of Bartok's "Rumanian Dance" was equally musicianly.

The nine traveling musicians are not prodigies, but normally-talented youngsters, all of whom have enjoyed a good environment for learning and early exposure to music. All have learned through the Suzuki method.

The method, developed ten years ago by Shinichi Suzuki, is based on the premise that since children are capable of mastering the complex art of speech at an early age simply by imitation and repetition, they should be equally able to learn to play an instrument. The key is initiating the learning process during the years when a child's mind is growing fastest — from birth to age six.

Begin At Two

Two-year-old children, having been exposed to great music from birth, begin on tiny violins and work their way up to larger instruments as they grow. When they can play the Vivaldi A-Minor Concerto (or something of similar difficulty), they are taught to read music.

Classes and concerts are often given in groups, beginning with solo performances by more advanced students and ending with ensemble performance of a basic exercise: a set of rhythmic variations on "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" devised by Suzuki to develop bowing technique.

Lincoln Public School Enrollment Down 515

Enrollment in the Lincoln Public Schools is down by 515 students, or a 1.7% drop from a year ago, according to preliminary totals in the official 1974-75 count released Tuesday.

Friday, when Lincoln schools joined others in making the nationwide tally, 28,667 students had registered. That compares with 29,182 in last year's official September count.

The new total, however, represents an increase of 381 students since schools opened Sept. 3.

Ed Wahl, planning assistant in management services, said the official total may vary from the Tuesday count by about 16, as numbers submitted by mail by each school are double-checked and verified.

The nationwide count is taken at the end of the fourth week in September to eliminate duplications of re-enrolling students in schools.

Wahl said the total for elementary schools is 14,940, including 115 children in Head Start preschool programs, and 2,120 in kindergarten.

The number of students in junior high schools is 7,099, and in senior highs, 6,628.

The 28,667 total also includes 596 special education students, with 263 in elementary schools, 231 in junior highs and 102 in senior highs.

Anxious to safeguard tenure and academic freedom, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Senate Tuesday expressed concern that if financial exigency were declared at UNL, the normal rules protecting tenure would be thrown out. But President Dick Gilbert, chemical engineering professor, assured them they always have an appeal right under regents bylaws.

The senate met in special session to consider any late amendments to the final draft of bylaws before submitting them for the NU Board of Regents to consider in November.

The section on declaring financial exigency allows the UNL chancellor to make the decision for the entire campus "or any college or unit at UNL."

Law Prof. Wallace M. Rudolph said that "if there's a shortfall in any particular area," then Chancellor James H. Zumbege could say, "We have to get rid of some people in this area."

He said 55 Arts and Science College positions were "cut out" under a similar situation at the University of Hawaii, to allow opening a new law school.

Stricter Definition
Rudolph, on behalf of the Faculty Senate academic freedom and tenure committee, offered a more strict definition of financial exigency, approved on a voice vote.

The definition stipulates that if UNL programs cannot be maintained at existing funding levels, a state of financial exigency must be declared institution-wide.

That decision, according to the provision, may result only from action outside the UNL administrative structure, such as legislative measures; or internally as a result of tuition income below budgeted projections, for example.

Zumbege Gets Time For Report

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor James H. Zumbege will discuss his annual report to the Faculty Senate at a 4 p.m. meeting Tuesday in Love Library auditorium.

The discussion will be a follow-up to the brief time available to Zumbege when he presented the report to the Faculty Senate last month.

In regular business, senate approval will be requested for the report by the Committee on Salary Goals and Achievement, which indicated wide disparities in pay among departments and faculty ranks.

Senate approval of the report is required before forwarding it to the UNL administration and the NU Board of Regents.

declare financial exigency exists, and the Faculty Senate academic planning committee must attest to the figures said to indicate financial exigency.

Faculty Senate members expressed concern that if financial exigency were declared at UNL, the normal rules protecting tenure would be thrown out. But President Dick Gilbert, chemical engineering professor, assured them they always have an appeal right under regents bylaws.

Administrators Too
The amended definition on financial exigency also provides that if positions must be cut, administrators be considered in the action, as well as faculty.

Past Faculty Senate President Wallace Peterson, economics professor, said the institution-wide provision on financial exigency conforms with the American Association of University Professors position, supporting it only when there is an absolute reduction of funds in the total budget and not in isolated areas.

Rudolph, supporting the redefinition, said the chancellor has other procedures available to him to plan programs ahead of budget time, with the suggestion implied Zumbege would not be stripped of all power in coping with financial exigency.

Zumbege has asked that all input on the bylaws proposals be submitted to him by Oct. 18. The bylaws will govern the structure of UNL, general conditions of professional staff employment, faculty government, students, and business, finance and property.

The Faculty Senate Tuesday also approved minor amendments, mostly in wording, in bylaws relating to new administrative positions, UNL personnel records and the central planning committee.

Bancroft Girl Wins Carcass Honors

Omaha (AP) — Three Nebraska 4-H youngsters won championship honors in the carcass contest of the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show. They are Jean Graff, 14, of Bancroft; Mike Finn, 13, of Carroll; and Kevin Hamann, 16, of Wahoo. Miss Graff won with a 1,110-pound Limousin-Angus crossbred steer. The champion market hog shown by Finn was a 215-pound purebred Hampshire gilt. Young Hamann's top lamb carcass came from a Hampshire-Suffolk crossbred.

The workshop is supported by a continuing education grant from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Restaurant Group Makes A Change

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Restaurant Association is using its 25th anniversary to make a big change — the month for its annual meeting. The association has met for 24 years in October, but the session will be held now in February. The dates are Feb. 9 and 10. Reasons given include the fact that many other restaurant associations meet in October, many food services are booked solid with parties in October, and there's the football and hunting seasons. About 3,000 persons are expected to attend the February events at the Omaha Hilton Hotel.

Campaign Financing Deadlock Broken

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate negotiators yielded to the House Tuesday and dropped their fight for public financing of congressional campaigns.

The concession broke a deadlock over legislation that would make sweeping changes in the way campaigns for federal offices are financed.

The measure would put ceilings on campaign contributions and expenditures and provide for the use of tax funds to pay for the campaigns of major-party presidential candidates.

The Senate-House conferees scheduled another meeting for Thursday to iron out remaining differences and hoped to have a compromise ready for final action before Congress recesses for the November elections.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate conferees, told newsmen he felt the main issues had been resolved.

He also said he thinks President Ford will be "a little gun-shy" about vetoing the compromise version of bill.

An avowed aim of the legislation is to take big-money influence out of campaign financing.

Common Cause issued a statement saying it was tragic that the Senate's provisions for public financing of Senate and House races had been deleted.

"The House conferees, by insisting on a double standard of public financing, have assured a continuing 'business as usual' approach for massive special interest funding of congressional races," the statement said.

However, Common Cause said that in many respects the bill constitutes "historic campaign reform legislation."

The measure would put a $20 million limit on general election campaign spending by presidential candidates and a limit of $10 million on the amount they can spend to win nomination.

Major-party candidates would have their general election campaigns financed in full by the government and minor-party candidates would be entitled to an amount in proportion to their popular vote.

Candidates for the presidential nomination would be entitled to receive up to $5 million for their primary campaigns, or half the amount of spending ceiling.

The government would match private contributions of $250 or less. Before receiving any federal subsidy a candidate seeking a party's nomination would have to raise $100,000 in private contributions including at least $5,000 from each of 20 states.

The public financing would come from the voluntary $1 income tax check-off system established in 1971. If the check-off is made, the bill also provides that national party political committees could spend up to 2 cents times the voting age population on the general election campaign of their presidential candidate.

They also could spend a like amount, as could a state party committee, on the races of Senate candidates up to a maximum of $20,000 and on House candidates up to $10,000.

Activities by volunteer campaign workers, like taking voters to the poll or distributing literature, are not counted against the spending ceilings.

Waste Pickup Program To Continue In 5 Towns

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Representatives from five Lancaster county communities meeting Tuesday with the county commissioners and members of the city county health department tentatively agreed to continue the present solid waste pickup program until details for extended service are ironed out.

Firth, Panama, Hickman, Roca and Bennet are participants in an experimental solid waste removal program in which a large garbage box called a "green box" was placed in the community for garbage collection and the refuse was picked up once a week.

The primary concern voiced by the representatives was that the local communities not have to bear the entire cost of the program.

The County Board budgeted $10,000 for the six-month experimental program and has budgeted $50,000 for the present fiscal year.

A committee made up of one representative from each of the communities and city and county staff will investigate various methods of obtaining funding for the program.

Commissioner Jan Gauger said one of the possibilities is obtaining legislation enabling the board to levy a tax on the rural areas to fund the program.

Presently the board has the power to levy a tax for a solid waste disposal program, but the tax would have to include Lincoln residents.

Community representatives said the major problem with the present program has been overflowing boxes.

Mayor Dick Eisenhauer of Hickman said the boxes are filled rapidly and trash blows all over the village.

He said his community has little contention that the theory is sound, but it may not be practical with the present methods.

Dennis Knaub of Industrial Services, the company which hauls away the trash, said the overflow problem could be solved by either additional service or a compactor unit at the boxes.

He said a compactor would probably cost $4,500 plus installation.

Ken Widergren, of city sanitation division of the city county health board, told the group the minimum cost for the green box collection system for the total county population would be $126,354 a year.

He said the minimum cost to include only the incorporated villages would be $52,673.

Both figures are based on a once a week pickup at $70 per pickup.

Human Dignity Panel Considers Building Housing

The League of Human Dignity will try to arrange construction of a housing complex in Lincoln for severely physically handicapped people, members decided at a Tuesday evening meeting in Lincoln.

League Secretary Nancy Erickson said a meeting is planned for noon next Wednesday at the Lincoln Center, for groups such as the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council, or Easter Seal Society that would be interested in the project.

She said the league just learned of congressional action last December opening federal Housing and Urban Development money to nonprofit organizations for such projects.

The bureau noted that the highest proportion of childless wives, widows and divorcees is among women with some college — 22% of such women aged 25 to 39 are childless, compared with 18% in 1970. Among the same age group, 11% of those with a high school degree are childless, compared to 10% in 1970. Among women who have not finished high school, the proportion — 7% — hasn't changed in four years.

Smaller Families Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government survey shows American couples planning slightly smaller families than they did in 1973, marking yet another downward step in a decline begun seven years ago.

The Census Bureau said Tuesday a June canvass of wives aged 18 to 39 showed that every 1,000 of them intended to have 2,550 children. Those surveyed already had 1,973 children per 1,000 wives.

Last year, women of the same age group were planning 2,638 children.

The change will translate into three million fewer births this year, the bureau said. The birth rate is now estimated at 15 newborns per 1,000 people, compared to the plateau rate of 25 per 1,000 in the post World War II years.

Birth expectations have dropped steadily in the United States since 1967, when every 1,000 couples planned upon 3,118 children.

The latest survey shows the trend toward fewer children is strongest among whites, among younger women and among women with high school or college educations.

The bureau noted that the highest proportion of childless wives, widows and divorcees is among women with some college — 22% of such women aged 25 to 39 are childless, compared with 18% in 1970. Among the same age group, 11% of those with a high school degree are childless, compared to 10% in 1970. Goldsberry To Undergo More Psychiatric Tests

Lancaster District Judge William Blue Tuesday ordered additional psychiatric tests be given 18-year-old Mark Goldsberry.

Goldsberry has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in connection with the death of 15-year-old Wendy Hile, whose body was found three months after her disappearance last Nov. 15.

Judge Blue deferred sentencing Goldsberry until completion of a pre-sentence investigation.

A court order Tuesday showed that Judge Blue ordered the sheriff to deliver the youth to the Lincoln Regional Center for psychiatric examination by Dr. John Donaldson.

Goldsberry, who was originally charged with first-degree murder, entered the guilty plea to the amended charge on Aug. 22.

The second-degree charge carries a penalty of 10 years to life imprisonment.

Miss Universe 'A Great Chick' — Dubious Date

Melbourne, Australia (AP) — "She's a great chick. I want to see her again," say Ian Protheroe.

"She" is the reigning Miss Universe, 20-year-old Amparo Munoz of Spain, who saw Protheroe at one of her fashion shows and sent her chaperone to arrange an introduction.

"I was a bit dubious and frightened at first, and then she said through her interpreter: 'Tonight I am Amparo and not Miss Universe,'" said Protheroe, a 20-year-old sales manager, after a night on the town.

Youth, 17, killed At Hay Springs

Hay Springs (AP) — William M. Hofer, 17, of Hay Springs, was killed Tuesday when his pickup truck left a county road southeast of here and rolled.

He was alone in the vehicle, the State Patrol said.

The 1974 Nebraska Highway fatality toll stands at 289 compared to 311 on this date one year ago.
